EVERYMAN'S PSYCHOLOGY

10, ARE YOU A PERSONALITY?

(By FATHER G. BYRNE, S.J.)

At a Cannibals' banquet, one day, the piece de resistance was roast philosopher. To one of the guests who desired the funny-bone the host apologetically replied that he feared there was none, but that the analytical bump, with hyena-bone sauce, was a satisfying morsel! The guest died long ago. There were no Rotary Clubs, then; there are no minutes.

Most of us associate analysis with parsing: distant memories of unromantic periods which hampered the fancy flights of childhood! Perhaps it is on this account that we have a kind of dread of analysis. We are willing to leave it to the grammarian and to the dry-as-dust philosopher, with a kind of sneaking sympathy for the grudge of the Athenians against Socrates who tried on analytical tests in the then Pedder Streets and Bowling-grounds. Yet this analysis to which the psychologist invites us is really more interesting than cross-word puzzles. It is certainly more vital. Have you ever sat down quietly to think out what you mean by a word you often use—Personality?

First of all you never use the word of a dog, or even of a race-horse. You would not say that the chances of Quick-Silver, in the race, are uncertain, because "he is a horse of mercurial personality." You do use it of your fellow-men, as when you say that so-and-so is a man "of striking personality" or of no personality. Old Socrates would set himself out for at least a good hour's conversation about your meaning when force of his questions. Thus, when I say that I wash myself or that I examine myself, he wants to know "who is the washerman?" "I," and who or what is the "washed myself," or in what way is the cross-questioning judge identical with the prisoner at the bar.

I begin to reflect and I find, with the author of Science and the Soul, "that I am subject and object at once; and this constitutes my peculiarity. I am a spiritual inwardness, a mental awareness." There seem to be numberless parts; but I do not live in the parts but in the whole. Often I seem divided against my very self; yet in my consciousness of division I am still more conscious that I am indivisible. Today's movement of the hand of my clock are completely independent of yesterday's. It is not so with me. My to-days are inextricably bound up with the yesterdays out of which I survive, and they are helping to weave the texture of a future towards which I am hastening.

I may have thoughts which are alien to my character, but not to my personality: good or bad, mediocre or sublime, they belong to the person who pursues them. "What's my thought like?" asks the philosopher, and he replies: "I perceive a landscape in the Alps. I listen to the Erzica symphony; but I leave the heights as I found them, and the music in me is not the vibration of those strings and instruments; it is my creation, interpreting the stricken you say "of no personality." He would say, as indeed a German philosopher says, "my good fellow, don't you see that Personality can only mean 'being person' as Honesty means 'being honest'?" Do you not seem to be making personality and character stand for one and the same thing? Whereas it is not the man, who "is person," that has a striking character or a wishy-washy one, as the case may be? In fact, is it not just because my friend's personality remains unchanged, that I am justified in condemning him for growing into a mean character, when he was so generous in his young days?

Personality is of great interest to the psychologist. If you blot out personality there would be no psychologist to psychologize. "To be a person," as Dr. Barry writes, "is to say 'I am I'; it is the subject implicit in all affirmations, the coefficient of thought without which mind is inconceivable." Thomas Reid was called by his admirers the philosopher of common sense. He had no illusions about personality. "I am not thought, I am not action, I am not feeling, I am something that not feeling, and action, and suffers." At the end of the questions which the psychologist puts to me seem absurd. It is only when I am willing to fall back on analysis, in the case gently pulling myself to pieces, that I begin to realise the chords. Atoms and Energies know nothing of such a power; their motions are transitive, not returning on and in themselves. They are dead, even when the spirit uses them; they run on surface dimensions and have no depth. But Personality has depth below depth, height above height, and it reaches out to Him who alone can fathom those depths and illumine these heights.

NEW RESTAURANT OPENS SHORTLY

TO SPECIALISE IN RUSSIAN DISHES

Those who are "in the know" have been following with interest the preparations for the opening of the new Excelsior Restaurant at 22 Des Voeux Road Central, opposite the Government Radio Office. Mr. A. Eddy, late Manager of the Hotel Royal Palm in Havana, Cuba, and formerly connected with large hotels in France and Egypt, is in charge of the operations and will announce the opening date shortly.

Besides English food, the restaurant will specialise in Russian dishes which are so little known in the Colony and a famous Russian Chef will be in-charge of the cuisine.

Those who like Indian cooking will be glad to hear that the Excelsior Restaurant will have delicious Indian dishes, like curry, etc., on its daily menu and persons who are not as yet acquainted with the culinary art of India will have a unique opportunity to relish some of the genuine dishes of that country.

Variety is the motto of the Excelsior Restaurant and the highest ambition of the entire staff will be to make variety a fact. Mr. Eddy not only promises good food but also assures the patrons of the Excelsior Restaurant of excellent service and treatment in every way.

LONDON MASONIC LODGES

LORD AMPHILL'S DESIRE.

London, Feb. 21.—Lord Amphil: Pro. Grand Master, at a special meeting of the Grand Stewards' Lodge, Freemasons Hall, last night, said it was his desire that the 1,146 London lodges which now exist should be reorganised so as to give them something approaching the position of lodges in provinces and districts.

Lord Amphil invested over 250 Past Masters of London lodges who had been honoured with London rank. This distinction was created in 1908, and last night was the first occasion on which any form of recognition had been given to it.

FORWARD STRIDE IN TELEVISION

BIGGER SCREEN: BETTER PRODUCTION

In a basement studio at Broadcasting House artists caper and posture before a white screen in the rays of a flickering shaft that stabs through the darkness from a wall aperture.

They are bizarre, nightmare figures—blue-lipped, complexion black or clownish white. A television broadcast is in progress. Four times a week, since August, when the B.B.C. began to transmit television, this scene weird, as an African witch dance, has been enacted. And the new-born form of entertainment has so developed, acquired such definite character, that I was astonished by a demonstration of reception given to me at Broadcasting House.

A New Television. In a room, remote from the transmitting studio we received the television, by wire, on a new Baird television which has a frosted screen of oblong shape 16in. high by 6in. wide. This screen was a great deal larger than that of an older model standing alongside. Spectators can sit at a comfortable distance from it and enjoy a programme of value, though there remains the drawback that only one artist can, conveniently, appear at a time.

A greenish light, traversed by faint, dark vertical lines, shimmered on the screen. There followed the preliminary announcement through the loud-speaker of an ordinary wireless receiver alongside. Camp James Liveridge, as a Zulu, with black face and white patches round the eyes and mouth, giving vocal imitations of jungle beasts. Good reception, but there was better to follow. Harry Michaelson, whose bushy eyebrows and pince-nez glasses showed up with exceptional clarity, drew cartoons. Then came laughing Pearl Green with jazz and high-kicking dances.

Clearer Detail. Every detail of the face and movements of these second two artists could be seen without difficulty, every subtle change of expression appreciated. There were "close-ups" of the head and shoulders and "dissolving long shots" as the artist retreated from the projector and appeared at full length. This last device was particularly effective for Pearl Green's change of rôle from singer to

DEATH OF ANNY AHLERS

TALENTED AND CHARMING ACTRESS

Miss Anny Ahlers, the talented young German actress, created the part of Madame Dubarry, in the English version of Paul Knepler and J. M. Wollenmink's Operette, "The Dubarry," written to the music of Carl Millöcker, at His Majesty's Theatre, London, on April 14. The part was recognised at once to impose a very heavy strain. It was brilliantly played by Miss Ahlers and she had the support of a fine cast which included Miss Clavie Hurwicke, Mr. Charles Heslop and Miss Margaret Yarde. Through the summer season it remained one of the big successes but in September Miss Ahlers was attacked by laryngitis. The management had three medical men in the wings to help her to pull through but on September 21, when she had to appear in a matinee as well as in the evening, she broke down on the stage in the latter performance. Her understudy carried on for two scenes and then she gallantly returned for the rest of the play.

Now a tragic end has come. Miss Ahlers, perhaps, had overtaxed her strength once again with the result that her sleep-walking propensities brought disaster. She danced, and when, by a reversal of the process, the three artists came on one after the other at the finale and ran towards the "camera."

Here is not merely a great advance in reception (though the dark vertical lines persist) but equal progress in the technique of production.

It is said that there are 38,000 British owners of television receivers.

Power for Battery Sets. The "Quiescent Push-pull" principle in receiver design, just introduced in this country, offers important advantages. Among them is the provision of enough power to work a moving-coil speaker in an ordinary battery set, with the corollary that portables can now be designed with the best speakers. The Ever-Ready firm inform me that they are marketing a special battery of 130.5 volts for the "Quiescent Push-pull" receiver. I have also received details of a whole range of Ferranti transformers for this type of set.

CONTINENTAL LETTER

Work on German Railways: Holland to Batavia by Airship?
Finances of French Railways: Moscow and the Far East: Oilfields in Albania.

BERLIN

Work on Railways.

Berlin, March 14.—An auspicious beginning was made to-day for putting into effect the Government's extensive scheme for the creation of work by the decision of the German State Railway Company to engage 75,000 new hands for outside repair work on road-beds to be started immediately. The work will involve the placing of large orders for materials with private undertakings, thus providing employment for upwards of 20,000 more, so that nearly 100,000 men will be taken out of the ranks of the idle by the State Railway's decision.

For Hindenburg and Hitler. President von Hindenburg and Chancellor Hitler will, by an unanimous vote of the city council of Chemnitz, receive the freedom of the city.

Berlin's Local Government. A thorough reorganization of the administration of the city of Berlin, which has been necessitated by the result of the municipal elections on Sunday last, is taking place.

Corporal Punishment.

Corporal punishment in schools, which had been banned by law for several years, is now being reintroduced in Saxon schools as a means of preserving discipline. The decree permits "moderate flogging" if it is deemed necessary for the maintenance of strict discipline, but requests the teachers to keep a written record of each case of flogging and not apply the rod for correcting negligence or similar reasons not involving the question of discipline.

Holland to N.E.I. by Airship?

Berlin, March 15.—The feasibility of a regular airship service between the Netherlands and the Dutch East-Indies was emphasized by Dr. Hugo Eckener in an interview given this morning on his return from Batavia. Dr. Eckener declared that the present Zeppelin would not be suitable for the service and that a swifter and more powerful craft would have to be constructed. However it would also have to be too large as otherwise intermediary landings might become difficult. The final decision regarding the institution of the service and the details connected with it would depend on the outcome of his negotiations with the Dutch Government.

Reprisal. Berlin, March 14.—In connection with the fact that the Czechoslovak Crown is at present not quoted at the Berlin Exchange, it is authoritatively stated that this constitutes one of Germany's measures of reprisal for Prague's attitude towards the German export trade.

PARIS

Railways Feel the Pinch!

Paris, March 14.—The precarious financial situation of the French railways which for some years have been piling up deficits and this year are confronted with a deficit of 2,000,000,000 Francs, formed the subject of a lively discussion in the Senate to-day. The railways which are sorely handicapped by the heavy taxation, demand a considerable abatement of their taxes but in view of the state's own financial embarrassment it appears unlikely that Parliament will see its way of alleviating the distress of the railways.

MOSCOW

Opinion on Far East Crisis.

Moscow, March 14.—The opinion is gaining ground in political quarters here that the Japanese advance beyond the Great Wall is inevitable. "Krasnaya Svetsda," the organ of the Red Army, to-day published an article written by a military expert who comes to the conclusion that Japan will not content herself with the conquest of Jehol but will attempt to gain control over the entire region of Peiping and Tientsin so that events of great importance and consequence may soon take place in North China. The article further maintains that the Japanese distrust of Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang is the principal reason for the anticipated invasion of North China as his resignation is being regarded in Tokyo as a deliberate move to forestall a further Japanese advance.

FRANKFURT

Oilfields!

Frankfurt on the Main, March 14.—The Albanian Consulate here informs the Press that important oilfields have been discovered in Albania and that Italy has granted a credit of 200,000,000 Lire for their exploitation. It is proposed to lay a pipe-line to the seaport of Valona on the Adriatic where a large refinery is to be erected. The discovery of the new oilfields is considered of the most vital importance for both Albania and Italy.

GENEVA

Poland-Danzig Incident.

Geneva, March 14.—The landing of Polish marines on the Westerplatte within the territory of the Free City of Danzig was after a brief consideration adjudged as incompatible with the existing treaties by the League's Council this forenoon. Following this decision Polish Foreign Minister Colonel Beck announced that his Government would immediately withdraw the reinforcements.

The Council's decision allays, at least temporarily, the tension between the Free City and Poland.

RUSSIAN GOODS IN CHINA

ALARMINGLY CHEAP

Alarmed over the very low prices for which Russian goods are offered in the Chinese market and which threaten the domestic manufacturers, the Chinese Government now wants to make the Russo-Chinese trade a national undertaking, according to a Shanghai message to the Asahi.

Owing to the repeated rises in the gold currency, both European and American goods cost very much nowadays. Japanese goods are offered at attractive prices, but in the face of the boycott agitation, Chinese merchants are afraid of handling them. Russian goods are therefore popular among them. Russian goods are, however, offered at very low prices, and their activity hampers the development of the domestic industry.

The Chinese authorities are now much concerned with the situation. In his contribution to an organ paper, Mr. He, chief of the Board of International Trade, declares that the import of Russian goods of which one never knows the cost is destructive to the Chinese economy. Mr. He has now proposed to the Government that the Russo-Chinese trade should be made a national undertaking and that, with investments by the public, a trading company should be established.

The National Government is favourably disposed towards the scheme. The Board of Trade is now studying the actual conditions of the export and import trade between the two countries. In the hope of establishing the same system as that in practice in Russia, the Government is now inclined to send an inspection commission to Moscow. The matter has already been communicated to Moscow. The Asahi correspondent learns also that the main object of the mission is to obtain the Soviet consent for a restriction of Russian goods shipped to China.

Not only the Best but the most convenient to buy

IT is well known that good cheese is one of the most valuable and concentrated of all food products. This is to say, not just "cheese," but first quality cheese like Kraft, which contains 20% - 25% more fat content than other kinds.

Its mellow, appetising flavour and rich creaminess have earned for Kraft Cheese a world-wide demand. Made from the highest grade pasteurised milk by the Kraft process, which results in a cheese unaffected by high temperatures or climatic changes. Untouched by hand; delicious to the taste and the most convenient to buy. Sold in $\frac{1}{2}$ lb., 1 lb., or 5 lb. packages, tin foil-wrapped, or in 1 ounce cartons.

FISH—In Different Ways

PEOPLE who cannot eat much meat, or do not want to any way, are sometimes rather hardly treated.

Fried fillets of plaice or grill are often quite well done, especially in households where the art of deep frying is understood and practised.

Grilled fish is also quite frequently successful, and some people whose general cooking is rather unsatisfactory have a positive genius for fish-cakes. But there are very many other ways of treating really ordinary kinds of fish; and if you analyse quite a number of the fish dishes you meet at restaurants you will find that it would be a simple matter to produce them at home. Sometimes—though you needn't talk about it—out of "left-overs."

Turbot and halibut, as every wise housekeeper knows, can often be bought very cheaply if you take the whole fish, and they are sufficiently closely related in texture and flavour to be interchangeable in many recipes.

You can cook the fish whole either by building it in a properly prepared liquor or by baking it.

TO COOK FILLETS

If you boil it you will need a good sauce. Shrimps, mushrooms, mussels, tomatoes, or the eggs which must enter that ever-popular yellow sauce are all good things to use for the purpose.

If you bake it the flavouring ingredients will enter the baking dish with the fish.

Slices cut from turbot or halibut grill well after they have been well sprinkled with salt and pepper and olive oil or melted butter. They agree well with butter beaten up with chopped parsley and lemon juice and made into neat patties.

Filletts of either fish may be cooked in various ways.

A pleasant one is to spread them with farinaceous roll them up, wrap them in a deep buttered baking tin, and about half a pint of fish stock, or, of possible, a little less fish stock and a little white wine, and cook in the oven for fifteen or twenty minutes.

THE PRINCIPAL COURSE

WHEN this is to be the principal course of the meal and you want to make it especially attractive, shell from eight to twelve prawns and cut them in half lengthwise, and have some preserved mushrooms or lightly cooked fresh ones. Heat both prawns and mushrooms in a little thin white sauce.

Heat about half a pint of thicker white sauce, strain the liquor from the baking tin into it, boil quickly to reduce it in quantity, season well and add a squeeze of lemon juice.

Take the fillets out of their paper jackets and arrange them on a hot dish in a circle. Put the prawns and mushrooms in the centre and pour the sauce over the fish.

Another way of serving both these fish means cooking the fillets in a buttered baking tin with a little fish stock as before, but without rolling them up.

You then arrange them in a buttered fireproof dish either on a bed of sieved cooked spinach or with the spinach spread, on each one.

Cover them with a good white sauce well flavoured with cheese and sprinkle generously with grated cheese, bread-crumbs, and melted butter. Brown under the grill or in a hot oven.

It is simpler still to cook them as before, turn them into a hot dish and pour a good sauce over them. Scallops can be presented in a good many ways too.

One of the quickest and easiest is to wash them, dry them, cut each one into three pieces, and fry them in two ounces of melted butter till brown.

Wash their deep shells, fill them with the scallops, and sprinkle thickly with breadcrumb and grated cheese. Add a few pieces of butter to the top of each, filled scallop shell, and brown in a hot oven.

WELL-COOKED RICE

If you want to combine the "savoury" and fish course buy some small flounders or dabs and boil them in just enough fish stock to cover them, adding some sprigs of parsley, some grated horseradish, and a little cayenne to the stock.

Place the fish in a rather deep dish when it is done, strain the liquor over it, sprinkle the surface with chopped parsley, and serve with thin slices of brown bread and butter.

Casseroles of fish are interesting, because you can vary the ingredients so often.

Fish curries are excellent, too, providing that the rice which is their indispensable companion is really well cooked. For curries the rice should be dry, and with each grain separate.

Cooked fish can make an eminently pleasing appearance in a pastry case with white sauce enriched with a few mushrooms and a little parsley.

PARSNIPS

—NEED NOT BE SO
UNPOPULAR

PARSNIP FRITTERS

Ingredients.—Two or three parsnips, frying batter.

Method.—Prepare the parsnips and boil in salted water until tender. Then cut in round pieces, dip in frying batter and fry in deep fat. Serve very hot.

MANY people know—and very properly detest—the soft, watery mess that is served up in a vegetable dish and called parsnips. Most of their nutritive value has been boiled away, and the result is as distasteful to the palate as it is displeasing to the eye. Parsnips are worthy of better treatment than this, for they are a vegetable with valuable food properties and a pleasant, characteristic flavour that is unlike anything else.

In some parts of Scotland their value is so highly appreciated among the rural population that they come second only to oatmeal and potatoes in the household menu.

Although we have only one variety, compared with the three commonly grown in France, it can be cooked in many different ways.

Parsnips may safely be left in the ground till they begin to shoot in the spring. If they are dug up in February and the tops cut off, they can be preserved by laying them in sand till May.

Fried a golden brown in breadcrumb and egg, or dipped in batter and fried, parsnips may often be enjoyed by those who disliked them most before.

CREAM OF PARSNIPS

Ingredients.—1 lb. parsnips, 1 oz. butter, one sliced onion, one quart stock or milk, fried bread and grated cheese.

Method.—Wash or scrape the parsnips and cut into thin slices. Melt the butter and add the parsnips and onion. Stir for about five minutes. Then add stock or milk and simmer until the vegetables are very soft. Put through a wire sieve. Re-boil and season. Serve with fried snip-pets of bread and grated cheese.

GOOD LOOKS

ADVICE FOR THE BUSY WOMAN

The Scripture saying that none by taking thought can add a cubit to his stature is not now so true as when it was uttered. Anyhow, what every woman knows is that by the taking of thought, followed by actions, she can add considerably to her good appearance in a world of remarkably high standards in such matters.

The difficulty is for the woman who is otherwise busy to know just how to think and act to the best advantage. On the one hand, the women's journals offer her counsels of perfection, wooing her to complete on the same ground as her richer or more frivolous sisters; on the other, the pressure of her life and work tempt her to give up an unequal struggle. Easily she may fall between two stools—at times spurring herself toward a personal elegance she cannot maintain; again, in disappointment, "letting herself go" with sad effects upon her nerves and her efficiency, not to mention the on-looker. Hard as it may seem, it is yet true that worth, wages, and honest self-satisfaction depend largely upon the skill with which she solves the problem. A great comfort is to know that the problem is solvable.

But it is never done at hazard. The taking of thought and the strictest realism are necessary. And once the limits are set she must observe her own regime, hold to her own style, and determine not to be led away by fashions which call for further extravagances to make them truly effective.

In a consideration of the cardinal points—care of the skin, the hair, the hands, and the suppleness of the body—it may seem at first that the question of dress should be left out of count. If the body is right, may not the raiment be left to look after itself? In practice, however, this is not how things work. Wrong ideas of dressing are behind many a failure, leading, as they do, to over-difficult hair-dressing, plucked eyebrows, extreme make-up, and other expenses which have painful results when not perfect. At the same time such dissatisfaction leads to constant additions to the wardrobe in a vain effort to look "just right."

Having decided what her colours are and which of the "classic" cuts become her and her occasions, the busy woman should abide by these absolutely. Indeed, cleanliness apart, it is the foundational idea of dress which, more than any other one thing, will indicate and simplify the needful routine. For the purposes of the series of articles which will follow, however, it shall be assumed that readers have a correct notion of what clothes they should wear, and the first question to be dealt with will be the day-in, day-out care of the skin, with special reference, of course, to the skin of the face and neck. And the first axiom to be laid down will be that while a certain amount of make-up is usually a necessity to comfort and the "vogue," the application must be as light and as economical as possible.

Successful

BABY CARE

"HOW soon should I clean my baby's teeth?" writes a mother who is anxious to start well with these important health assets.

Baby's teeth should be cleaned when they are about six or eight in number. A small toothbrush of the "Tom Thumb" variety is the best to use, and the teeth should be brushed up and down as well as from side to side, so that any food between them is dislodged.

Early Days

WARM water is all that will be necessary at first, and from time to time a little bicarbonate of soda dissolved in the tooth glass may be used. As the teeth increase in number an alkaline tooth paste or precipitated chalk will be satisfactory, and a slightly stiffer brush may be needed. It is also important to brush the inner sides of the teeth, a point apt to be forgotten.

Never neglect decay in the first or "milk" teeth on the pretext that they are only temporary; the second teeth are already in the gums and may become infected. Small brown spots can be removed by rubbing them with a piece of cotton-wool wrapped round your finger and dipped into a mild solution of bicarbonate of soda and water.

Let the child see a dentist at once if any permanent blemishes appear; in fact, a regular quarterly visit to your dentist or dental clinic should be the rule. In this way any overcrowding of the teeth or early defects are taken in time and further harm is prevented.

The "Play Spirit"

MOUTH rinsing is as necessary as tooth-brushing, and a mouthful of clean water should be vigorously "worked" about, so that water is forced through the teeth in and out, as well as from side to side and round the gums.

It is a good thing to make gargling a family practice. The tiny ones will love copying daddy and mummy, and in the event of a cold or sore throat they can do this without any fuss or bother.

By introducing the play spirit mouth-cleaning and tooth-brush drill will be an amusing morning and evening occupation, and a life-long good habit will be formed.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

CRUSHED eggshells and vinegar are excellent for cleaning stained or clouded glass, and nothing beats a clean chamois leather for giving it a final polish.

Cleaning tools and materials are pernickety possessions. Unless they are trained to keep their proper places when not in use they deteriorate quickly, and much of their value is often wasted.

Brooms should be hung up; never allowed to stand on their bristles.

THE lids and corks of bottles which contain creams, polishes and other cleaning or furniture beautifying agents must be firmly replaced immediately after use.

Packets of soap flakes, scourers and things of that sort should be opened according to directions, not just jabbed open anywhere, so that the contents emerge when you don't want them to.

EXTREME economy in the matter of linens does no one any good; not even the household budget.

When there are plenty of clean dry towels in use the process of washing up is more rapid and more agreeable. A cloth which is only slightly soiled is much easier to wash than a dirty one; and a generous quantity of cloths used in rotation will last longer than a few used till they are in rags.

"BEHIND THE MASK"

MYSTERY STORY AT QUEEN'S

"Behind the Mask," the Columbia film that is full of shocking, thrilling and mystifying horrors opens its engagement to-day.

It tells a mystery story of horror about a man, who had a soul of a fiend—a veritable human monster. Anyone who interferes with his devilish plans is destroyed. He is the leader of a notorious dope ring, but no one, not even his loyal co-workers, know his identity. Not until the last few minutes of the film, when the mask is torn from his satanic features, is he revealed as he actually is. But that is after a series of adventures in which he performs many fiendish brutalities. Leading roles are played by Jack Holt, hero of a score of successes and Boris Karloff, horrible monster of "Frankenstein" and Constance Cummings, who performed so ably in "The Criminal Code." Supporting parts are handled by Claude King, Bertha Mann, Edward Van Sloan and Willard Robertson. John Francis Dillon directed.

IN

"HORSE FEATHERS"
THE FOUR MARX
BROTHERS

Simply, cu-tazy! Off stage and on! The public, which knows the Four Marx Brothers for a thoroughly insane lot, principally through such pictures as "Horse Feathers," their latest starring effort, which comes to the King's Theatre again on next week, shares that knowledge with the quartet's best friends.

The latter know that in private the Marx boys are just as "batty" as they are on the stage or screen. Many a story about their mad off stage antics is going the rounds in a dozen cities in the country.

The Paramount studio in Hollywood is the least safe place in the film capital when the mad brothers are making a picture. Executives arriving at work one morning, for example, found the name plates from their doors had been around, and on one knew which office was which.

"The Marx Brothers got here early this morning," they were finally informed. And that explained it.

Harpo, silent, red-wigged member of the Marx quartet, is given to chasing blondes across stages and screens, to the delight of audiences. But he does it in private life, too.

When the Marx Brothers were making personal appearances in Cincinnati last season, a pretty golden-haired cigarette girl in the swank Netherland Plaza Hotel learned that fact.

She walked into a stately, solemn restaurant where all was decorum, to discover Harpo at a table with his other three brothers. As she approached he made a lunge at her, as if to pursue her. She jumped.

George Archambaud is the envy of all his fellow motion picture directors in Hollywood.

One outstanding film of a season is considered quite a directorial prize; Archambaud has had two in succession. Direct from "The Lost Squadron," he turned to RKO-Radio Pictures' John Barrymore starring production, "State's Attorney."

While the reports of box-office success from the aviation special poured into the RKO studios, he went ahead with the direction of what is said to be another hit production. In the new picture which opened to-day at the Central, Archambaud has feature entirely different in type from "The Lost Squadron." A dramatic romance of metropolitan life, it tells the story of a brilliant attorney who could win juries either on defense or prosecution but couldn't conquer his own heart. Supporting Barrymore who plays the title role, are Helen Twelvetrees, Jill Esmond, William Boyd, Mary Duncan, Raoul Roulien and a large cast.

his other three brothers. As she approached he made a lunge at her, as if to pursue her. She jumped.

Then Harpo sprang up and she fled in earnest. Between the tables, around pillars, she ran, with Harpo close on her trail. Dignified head waiters and startled guests looked on in amazement, too surprised to do anything. Then Harpo abandoned the chase and went back to his dinner.

"STATE'S ATTORNEY"
JOHN BARRYMORE'S
SUCCESSRIOT OF RUMOURS
IN BANGKOKNORTHERN CHIEFS WANT
BRITISH PROTECTION

Bangkok, March 23.—The Coronation anniversary celebrations fell very flat with the absence of the Monarch from the capital. The members of the Royal Family were conspicuous by their absence through ill-health or non-residence in the capital, from the customary observations. But the usual Garden Party was given and the diplomats and consuls, Europeans in the civil service, together with the leading members of the foreign mercantile community, were all present. The King's health was heartily pledged.

Several of the State Councillors were prevented from attendance through absence on official duties in the provinces.

Bangkok has certainly excelled itself this week rumours being startling enough to make everyone sit up. The King was to return to Bangkok on the 19th ult, in order to preside over the celebrations in honour of his Coronation. The special train was sent down to Hua Hin, and the members of the Royal Family and officials waited at the hour of arrival for the special to appear. Being a Sunday, and a holiday in the Civil Service, the telegram announcing that His Majesty was not travelling didn't get circulated in time. But as soon as the fact leaked out that the King had not returned according to schedule, then rumours began to get busy. And according to which party one belonged to the King's health, the quarrels of the State Councillors, the anxiety of the northern chiefs to accept British help and support from the Shan State, etc., etc.

Official Denial.

So general a currency indeed did these rumours obtain that the President of the State Council thought fit to meet the pressmen of the city and categorically deny them. He gave an unqualified assurance that the King's illness was not a diplomatic indisposition, and classed the rumours as sinful.

So much for the official disclaimer. But if the first crop of rumours has died down, there are any number of new ones to take their place, a condition of affairs which does not make for peace and happiness among a people already too prone to listen to all the gossip of the bazaars. The authorities would hardly like to be able to trace the authorship of these rumours and make an example of the offenders. There are adequate powers in the government hands, but the bringing home of the offence to the principals is not so easy. S.F.P.

Nanking, March 13.—The next National Athletic Meet will be held at the Capital on October 10, it was announced to-day. The Ministry of Education has already been authorized to arrange with the authorities of the Mausoleum Park for temporary control of that area in order to facilitate preparations for the athletic meet to be held at the Central Stadium, which is situated within the Park—Kuo Min.

"A FAREWELL TO ARMS"HELEN HAYES TELLS OF
THE PAST

Working in motion pictures was a mortal sin for a stage player once upon a time, Helen Hayes reminisces.

Miss Hayes co-starred with Gary Cooper in "A Farewell To Arms" screen adaptation of the novel by Ernest Hemingway in which Adolphe Menjou is featured, currently on display at the King's Theatre. Recalls that she was a youngster with a few years of theatrical experience when she sought and found some additional work at the old Vitagraph studios in Brooklyn.

The first person she met there was John Bunny, a stage player of some fame, who was also making "extra money." Bunny blushed when he met the little girl, and explained to her how terrible it was considered to work in pictures.

They immediately made a pact of the "If you won't tell on me" I won't tell on you" variety.

"Now," comments Miss Hayes, "there isn't an actor on Broadway of any standing who doesn't work in pictures every chance he gets."

Miss Hayes herself was drafted from the cast of "Coquette," a stage hit of a few seasons ago, to make her first important film appearance in the starring role in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet." She followed this with the starring feminine role in "Arrowsmith."

In "A Farewell To Arms" she is cast as the English nurse who falls desperately in love with the young American ambulance officer serving in the Italian army. The role is played by Cooper. Their romance leads to a dramatic climax in the Swiss hospital where their child is born.

first production since "Emma," which proved one of the theatrical sensations of this year.

"I wish I could stand on the housetops and broadcast—Don't fear middle age. Look forward to it instead. Think, young and dress young, look young and have a good time. Youth comes from within. I know," concluded Miss Dressler.

"PROSPERITY"

MARIE DRESSLER ON MIDDLE AGE

"Middle age is the best part of life," says Marie Dressler, the "grand old trouper" of the screen, "You don't really begin to appreciate life until after you're fifty," insists the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, who will be seen on Sunday next at the Queen's Theatre in "Prosperity," her latest co-starring comedy with Polly Moran.

Marie looked and felt particularly gay during production of the new picture, in which she and Miss Moran play rival mothers-in-law in a comical drama of small town life. She was specially happy because it has her ninth appearance with Miss Moran.

Began to Live at Fifty.

"One of the tragedies of life," says Marie, "is the middle-aged person who feels that life is all over, and looks and acts accordingly. If they only knew it, life is just beginning. Children are out of the way and caring for themselves. Responsibilities are all over, I didn't really begin to live until I was fifty."

"This picture put me in mind of playing a mother-in-law, watching over youngsters. Mothers-in-law shouldn't do that. It was in thinking over the various things mothers-in-law shouldn't do in the way of interference—so that I could do them on the screen and get laughs—that I learned that a mother-in-law who realizes that her responsibilities are over, and acts accordingly, is a very lucky woman. The mother-in-law joke may get laughs—but it points to a heap of truth."

"Prosperity," directed by Sam Wood, is a hilarious comedy with Marie Dressler in the lead. "Caught Short," "Politics" and other bits in the centre of a whirlwind of gaiety—and a bit of gripping character work for Marie—thrown in to show the other side of her talents. Anita Page and Norman Foster play the married children, and Jacques Lyon, Jerry Tucker, Charles Giblin, Frank Darien and Henry Arnetta are in the supporting cast. It is Miss Dressler's (Continued on previous column.)

HONGKONG TELEPHONE COMPANY, LTD.

AUTOMATIC EXCHANGE BOTH IN HONG KONG AND KOWLOON TO BE EXTENDED

SUCCESSFUL YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED BY CHAIRMAN

That the Automatic Exchange both in Hong Kong and Kowloon are being extended was revealed by the Hon. Mr. C. Gordon Mackie, Chairman, at the annual general meeting of the Hong Kong Telephone Co., Ltd., at Exchange Building yesterday.

In reviewing a very good year's working of the Company, Mr. Mackie pointed out that rapid progress was being made by the Company, and said that an additional 4,000 lines of switching equipment for Central Exchange and 2,500 for Kowloon would soon be installed giving an increase of approximately 50 per cent. in Exchange capacity. Correspondence with regard to a possible Radio Telephone service was in progress.

Those present at the meeting were:—Hon. Mr. C. Gordon Mackie (chairman), Mr. A. L. Shields, Mr. J. P. Warren, Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotevali, Mr. D. H. Blake, Mr. J. Scott Harston, (directors) Mr. J. H. Taggart (managing director), Mr. J. P. Sherry (manager), Mr. W. L. McKenzie, Messrs. W. C. Clarke, D. Tolan, C. Hatt, Wong Ping Sun, A. M. L. Soares, H. J. M. Figueiredo, Chau Chik Nin, P. C. Potts, Chua Seng Choo, E. W. Gardiner, F. M. Ellis, and Kwok Hin Wong (shareholders).

RADIO TELEPHONE AND TELEPRINTER SERVICE

THE CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

In moving for the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, the Chairman said:—

Turning to the Accounts, you will observe, by reference to the Debit side of Profit and Loss Account, that the amount payable annually to Government in respect of Royalties continues to increase and the sum shown for the year under review, namely $44,938.00, is $4,080 in excess of that paid for the previous year. In this connection I think it opportune to remind shareholders that a Royalty of $4-per annum is payable on all Exchange Lines so that the annual subscription, from a revenue point of view, for an ordinary Exchange Line is really only $113-per annum—a remarkably low rate for such an up-to-date and thoroughly efficient service.

Directors' Fees.

In the matter of Directors' Fees, these have remained at their original figure since the inception of the Company in the year 1926, since when your business has grown enormously and it is suggested that for this reason alone—even ignoring the factor of Exchange which, in itself, would justify an increase—the fees be increased from $2,000 to $3,000-per annum as from January 1 1933. This will necessitate a minor alteration to the Company's Articles of Association and a special Resolution to this effect will be put before Shareholders for their approval at an Extraordinary General Meeting to be held immediately after the ordinary business of the Company has been transacted.

I would mention that the proposal has the approval of the China and Japan Telephone and Electric Co., Ltd. who, as you are no doubt aware, are the largest shareholders.

Depreciation.

The appropriation to Depreciation for the year is $3,150.38 in excess of that for the previous financial year, but you will readily appreciate that the amount varies in accordance with the capital value of your plant, and in an undertaking such as yours, where obsolescence equipment is an important factor, a reasonable allowance for depreciation is absolutely essential.

Credit.

Referring to the credit side of Profit and Loss Account, it will be observed that, notwithstanding the absence of the substantial credits in respect of "sales of obsolescent stores and plant" and "profit on sale of investment" which were available for the preceding financial year, the net profit for the period under review has increased by $197,380.85, and this must be a source of considerable gratification to shareholders.

You will also observe that receipts from "Interest, Dividends and Exchange" have increased by $31,067.93, and I will make further reference to this matter when I deal with the Balance Sheet.

The usual Bonus to Staff has been provided for, and I am sure this will have the full approval of Shareholders, more particularly in view of the excellent results of the year's working.

It is noteworthy that the increased profits realised for the year under review are attributable mainly to higher income on working account, and that the profit on sale of obsolescent stores and plant, which has not risen in the same proportion, resulting in an augmented Gross Profit being carried to the credit of Profit and Loss Account which, I venture to suggest, affords a most satisfactory assurance to Shareholders of the sound lines on which the business is being conducted.

With reference to the sum which is proposed to carry forward to next Account, this is somewhat larger than usual but, although profits have increased, $67,500—more will be required to meet dividend payments for 1933—assuming that the present rate of 10 per cent is maintained—and your Directors feel that, having regard to the small maximum appropriation allowed to General Reserve, and in pursuance of the conservative policy which has resulted in the eminently satisfactory position occupied by your Company to-day, the interests of Shareholders can thus best be safeguarded.

Liabilities.

Turning now to the Liabilities side of the Balance Sheet, it will be observed that General Reserve Account will stand at $375,000—if you approve your Directors' recommendation that $50,000—be appropriated thereto. Depreciation Reserve has now reached a figure of $865,907.85, and practically the total amount of both Reserves has been invested in sound securities outside the business.

The combined investments are shown at cost and it will be noted that they had appreciated to the extent of $55,387.14 when valued at the market price ruling on December 1932.

Extensions in Exchange.

Speaking from the Chair at the last Annual Meeting, I pointed out the rapid progress which the Company was making, and indicated that your Board were then considering a proposal to extend the Automatic Exchange Equipments both in Hong Kong and Kowloon, and you will be pleased to learn, therefore, that an order has been placed with Siemens Bros. of Woolwich, London, for an additional 4,000 lines of switching equipment for Central Exchange, and 2,500 lines for Kowloon and that the actual work of installation is now in progress. This represents an increase of approximately 50 per cent. in Exchange capacity and is in keeping with the progressive policy of your Company in putting down in advance ample equipment embracing all modern improvements whereby it is enabled to give an efficient telephone service and to supply such service on demand.

The whole of the equipment will be manufactured at Woolwich and favourable terms were obtained on this order.

To meet payments falling due as shipments of the new equipment are made, your Directors decided to call up the amount outstanding on the partly paid shares. Consequently on September 30, 1932, the final call of $2.50 per share, amounting to $600,000, was made on the partly paid shares of the Company and this ranks for dividend as from October 1 1932. Your Authorised Capital has now been fully issued and, as in a steadily growing telephone business, Capital Expenditure on one or more of the various classes of plant required in the work of development is a daily occurrence, it is quite clear that it will become imperative in the near future to make application to have the Authorised Capital increased and your Directors are keeping this matter before them.

It is opportune at this juncture to make further reference to the inadequacy of the maximum appropriation which we are allowed to make to General Reserve, viz. $50,000-per annum, as the disparity has become more obvious now that the Authorised Capital has been fully issued and, as in a steadily growing telephone business, Capital Expenditure on one or more of the various classes of plant required in the work of development is a daily occurrence, it is quite clear that it will become imperative in the near future to make application to have the Authorised Capital increased and your Directors are keeping this matter before them.

Consequently, it is in the present intention of your Company, when applying for permission to increase its Capital, also to make application for an increase in the maximum allowable annual appropriation to General Reserve.

Taipei and Taining.
In July 1932, two small Automatic exchanges were installed at Taipei and Taining.

BESA FOUND GUILTY

Sentenced For False Pretences

SIX MONTHS' HARD LABOUR

J. E. Besa yesterday afternoon appeared before Mr. Justice Wood on a charge of obtaining $50 by false pretences. It will be recalled that Besa was discharged on Tuesday in connection with a charge of fraudulent conversion and with uttering forged receipts.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney-General, prosecuting, said, in outlining the case that the accused had an account in the National City Bank in October and November last. At the end of October the Bank sent a statement of Besa's account to the defendant and received an acknowledgment from him. The statement showed Besa's credit balance as $12.91. The defendant had paid in $10 since that date, but since October 13, the balance had been under $50.

Continuing Mr. Fraser said that on or about November 2, the defendant together with several other Filipinos entered the Eastern Bazaar and purchased some goods. They went there again on November 9 and made further purchases. On November 12, accused went to the shop by himself and said that as the banks were closed he would like $50 against his cheque. He was given the money and two days later his cheque was sent to the bank for payment, but the bank returned the cheque with a slip.

Evidence was then given in support of Mr. Fraser's opening.

The accused then went into the witness-box and said that he had obtained the money as a personal loan against a post-dated cheque. He left the Colony and forgot all about the cheque.

After his Lordship had summed up the case, the jury retired for about twenty minutes, after which they returned a unanimous verdict of "Guilty."

In reply to his Lordship, Mr. Fraser said that there was no previous conviction against the accused, but he was wanted by the police of Manila and Macao.

His Lordship then passed sentence of six months' hard labour.

po Market and Fanning and are affording a first class service to those subscribers who are connected thereto. The data obtained from the operation of these Exchanges will be very useful to the management in determining what demand exists for telephone service in rural areas and whether progress is such as to justify the opening of further similar Exchanges from time to time in other districts.

Radio Telephone.

In the matter of radiotelephone communication with far distant points such as Shanghai, we have kept in touch with Imperial and International Communications. Ltd. and a recent letter to hand advises that negotiations are still proceeding with Government and that radio communication should be established in about one year from the completion of such negotiations.

In connection with the Canton Trunk Service, we have been able to observe the results of a full year's working and these, in my opinion, justify the confidence which animated your Directors when they authorised the putting down of the Trunk Cable. This service has been in operation now since September 1, 1931, during which time it has functioned day and night without interruption.

During the year under review, 274 additional Exchange Lines and 864 Extension Lines were connected up and over 5,000 circuit miles of Underground Cable and Covered Distribution were laid down.

Teleprinter Service.

In conformity with the desire of your Company to afford subscribers all the advantages of modern progress in matters affecting telephone communication, Teleprinter Service was introduced to the Colony during the year and I have no doubt that in the course of time, when commercial houses realise the immense value of this class of special service in certain businesses, the number of Teleprinter installations will rapidly increase.

You will observe that your Company is in a very strong cash position, although I would point out that the balance shown would have been considerably reduced if the equipment for the extension of your Exchanges had been made as originally anticipated.

Before formally proposing the adoption of the Accounts, I would remind you of the Extraordinary General Meeting which will follow immediately and would request that you remain for the transaction of this special business which will be of very short duration.

There being no further matters calling for comment, I now beg

THE SUI TAI TRAGEDY

CHIEF OFFICER FOUND SHOT

The Sui Tai, running between Hong Kong and Macao was the scene of a distressing tragedy yesterday morning, when the chief officer, Mr. John Gentle Smith, was found in the officers' bathroom with a bullet wound through the heart.

The Sui Tai arrived in port from Macao at 9.40 on Tuesday night, and at 6.30 yesterday morning a cabin boy on going into the officers' bathroom, found Mr. Smith lying on his back, dead. His arms were folded across his chest and his singlet was saturated with blood from a wound near the heart. A Service revolver, with one of the six rounds expended was found near the body, and the circumstances suggested that he had taken his own life.

The deceased joined the Steamboat Company in March, 1930 and was acting Chief Officer of the Sui Tai at the time of his death. He was about 50 years of age and unmarried, and was a native of Glasgow. Of a quiet and temperate disposition he was greatly liked by all who knew him.

The Funeral.

The funeral took place yesterday, at the Protestant Cemetery, the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave officiating at the graveside. There was a representative gathering of ship's officers at the cemetery, among those present being Capt. Ferritt, Capt. Smith, Capt. Bentley, Capt. Lee, Capt. T. T. Laurensen, Mr. P. T. Farrell, Mr. Harold Seth, Mr. J. Lawrie, Mr. E. Latham, Mr. J. Anderson and Mr. J. Hynes.

Among the many wreaths were those sent by the following: Capt. Madden (s.s. Taishan), China Coast Officers' Guild, Officers, s.s. Tri-shan; Capt. Bentley (s.s. On Lee), Mr. and Mrs. C. Bond, Mr. R. W. Lee Jones, Mr. O. Holt, Mr. and Mrs. A. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McCaw and Mrs. S. S. Harris.

FORGED SIAMESE

BANKNOTES

SEVEN YEARS' IMPRISONMENT.

Sentence of seven years' imprisonment was imposed by the Puisne Judge, Mr. Justice J. R. Wood, at the Criminal Sessions yesterday, on a Chinese who was charged with for being in unlawful possession of implements for the forging of Siamese banknotes. The defendant was charged with another man but the latter was acquitted on the ground of lack of evidence against him.

formally to propose that the Report of the Directors and the Accounts for the Financial Year ending December 31 1932, as presented, be adopted, and that the following appropriations, recommended by your Directors, as incorporated in the Balance Sheet, be carried into effect, namely:—

Payment of a Final Dividend of 60 cents per share on Old Fully Paid-up shares (making 10 per cent. for the year)	$34,000.00
Payment of a Final Dividend of 51 1/4 cents per share on New Fully Paid-up Shares	184,500.00
Transfer to General Reserve (bringing same up to $375,000)	50,000.00
Carry forward to next Account	150,301.88
	$468,801.88

Other Matters.

The proposal was seconded by Mr. P. C. Potts and passed unanimously.

On the proposal of Mr. A. M. L. Soares, and seconded by Mr. Wong Ping Sun, Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotevali and Mr. J. Scott Harston were re-elected directors for the year.

Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews were re-elected auditors on the proposal of Mr. Figueiredo, seconded by Mr. Gardiner.

The appointment of Mr. A. L. Shields as Director in the place of Mr. R. G. Sheehan who retired owing to ill-health was confirmed.

Directors' Fees.

An extraordinary meeting was then held to amend the rule with regard to Directors' Fees. On the proposal of Mr. Soares and seconded by Chuan Chuk Ning, it was decided that "The Directors, other than the Managing Director, shall be paid by way of remuneration for their services the sum of $3,000 per annum in respect of each Director. Such remuneration be deemed accrue de die in diem."

THE LATE FATHER NETO

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL AT HAPPY VALLEY

The funeral of Rev. Fr. Antonino Neto, whose death was announced in our columns yesterday, took place at the Roman Catholic Cemetery last evening and was attended by a very large gathering of friends and representatives from the local Catholic institutions.

A service was held at the Chapel of the French Convent, and the funeral was preceded by a procession of girls and orphans from local Catholic schools and institutions in Hong Kong.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Vallorta assisted by the students of the Jesuit Seminary at Aberdeen.

Among the large gathering at the graveside were Bishop Abbot, Bishop Desvazieres, Rev. Fr. Noval, Rev. Fr. Spada, Rev. Fr. Byrne, S.J., Rev. Fr. Gallagher, S.J., Rev. Fr. MacDonald, S.J., Rev. Fr. Bourke, S.J., Rev. Fr. Casey, S.J., Rev. Fr. P. Grogan, S.J., Fr. Souvey, Fr. Bernardini, Fr. Joy, S.J., Fr. Terruzzi, Fr. Rosello, Rev. Fr. Gil, Rev. Fr. Martin.

The Mother Superior and sisters of the French and Italian Convents as well as sisters of the Maryknoll mission were also present.

The late Fr. Neto, had been a teacher many years ago at St. Joseph's Seminary in Macao, and there were a large number of people present at the funeral who had been in their younger days pupils at the Seminary.

Among the wreaths were tributes not only from friends in Hong Kong, but also from Canton, Macao and Shuikong.

SUCCESS DUE TO LUCK!

OPINION OF STAR IN "THE CRIMINAL CODE"

Boris Karloff ascribes all his present success as a talkie player to luck.

"If I hadn't gotten a lucky break," says Karloff, "I'd still be plugging along as I did for years, in stock and repertory companies. Certainly I'm not a better actor now than I was in those days. The 'breaks' mean everything in Hollywood."

"The Criminal Code," as produced on a Los Angeles stage, was instrumental in bringing Karloff's acting ability to the attention of film producers and directors. The role of the "Trusty" was taken by the actor, in a cast that included Arthur Byron and Russell Hardie. When Columbia was casting the talkie version of the memorable prison drama, Karloff was instantly signed to recreate his role for the screen.

"The Criminal Code," proved to be Karloff's first big break. Later he made "Five Star Final," "Graft," "The Guilty Generation" and "Scarface," contributing outstanding portrayals to each production.

"Frankenstein" was Karloff's next great success. He had the exacting role of "the Monster," a being created by a curious medical student. The actor has been highly praised by critics for his brilliant performance in this role.

And again he is prominently cast in one of those pictures that strikes terror in the hearts of audiences. In "Behind The Mask," Columbia film of mystery and horror, opening to-day at the Queen's Theatre, he plays a strange role. Others featured are Jack Holt, Constance Cummings, Edward Van Sloan, Bertha Mann, Claude King and Willard Robertson. John Francis Dillon directed.

RUSSIAN CUNNING

The friction that has arisen between Great Britain and Russia over the arrest of a number of British engineers on fantastic accusations of sabotage, shows that the Moscow Government is unchanged and unrepentant. That there should be any foundation to the charge is inconceivable. Nothing could be more certain than that a British firm undertaking enterprise of any kind in Russia would warn their employees, with all the emphasis at their command, to keep clear of politics and intrigue. They would only send to Russia men of stability, who could be relied upon to obey the letter and the spirit of these orders. American and German engineers have been for years in the employ of the Soviet Government, and no one can say that these incidents are inevitable, because Russians do not know how to behave to foreigners in their midst.

The explanation of the incident lies in the fact that a commercial treaty between Britain and Russia was being negotiated. Even if there were a substratum of truth in the charges, which we are firmly convinced there is not, the Russian authorities could perfectly well have sent the men concerned out of the country, and everyone would have been ready to keep the matter quiet. Moscow's object was to force Great Britain to suspend the treaty negotiations, and in this she has succeeded. The calculated reactions are as follows: in the first place there will be anger and exasperation throughout England at the thought of British people in the relentless and unscrupulous clutches of the Russian Police. Certain organs of popular opinion, and groups of public men can be relied upon to flare up and play the Soviet's game. Then, no doubt, every semblance of a fair trial and exemplary "mercy" will be staged. At the same time much will be made by other sections of opinion about the supposed loss of trade orders due to the incident. Relief of unemployment, it will be urged, has been sacrificed in the interests of men who have only themselves to blame for the trouble in which they were landed! Russian calculations on an appeal to class feeling can be fully imagined and need no detailing. Here is Third International intrigue with all its specious folly. A simple plan to set British people by the ears, and make them imagine that they are losing work and money, the Conservatives blaming the Bolsheviks and the Labour interests attacking our own Foreign Office and the Tory Government!

The Lena Goldfields concession might have been warning enough of the Soviet's good will and intentions to re-open trade with Britain! On the other hand Russia is a great and amazing market, and the British Government was clearly right to pursue a cautious policy of rapprochement. The Soviet Government has been in power for so long, many cruelties have been moderated, and the Five Year Plan goes forward. These are factors giving hope that a return to the ordinary relationship between nations might be expected. Unless this incident is speedily and satisfactorily settled, the only conclusion is that such hopes are illusory.

The lesson to Europe is clear. This is no time for ancient feuds among nations who are the guardians not only of science and knowledge, but of all the moral and political ideals of Western civilization. Small and weak powers share frontiers with Russia. Their rights and independence may at any time need protection. The Russian game is to weaken and to divide the Powers from whom help may be expected. Europe has overlooked the growing strength, economic and military, of the barbaric people on their eastern border, being content to dismiss them as dangerous only in their propaganda.

WEDDING

Miss Gertrude Lo Married to Dr. K. W. Chaun

The wedding was celebrated yesterday in St. John's Cathedral, of Miss Gertrude Lo daughter of Mr. Lo Cheung Shui and Dr. K. W. Chaun.

The Rev. H. V. Halward officiated. The Bride who was given away by her father looked very pretty in her gown of white pearl crepe cut in princess style with a long flowing train. A charming feature of the bridal procession was that the dresses of bride, bridesmaid, train bearer, and flower girls were all made in the same style with angel skin lace yokes and short puffed sleeves. The bride's veil was of embroidered tulle and secured by a little cap of orange blossom and pink pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair fern. All the dresses were by Maison D'Orbry. The Bridesmaid was Miss End Lo, sister of the bride, the train bearer Betty Choa and the flower girls Patricia and Cynthia Lo.

Mr. John L. Litton was best man. The Reception. After the ceremony a reception at which about 300 guests were present was held in Gloucester Restaurant, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Among the guests were the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern and Mrs. Southern, Sir Robert Ho Tung, the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, and Mr. M. K. Lo. The health of the bride and groom was proposed by the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall who said: "Ladies and gentlemen, When my friend Mr. M. K. Lo brought to me the joint invitation of his father and the father of the bridegroom to propose the principal toast, he added of his own accord that just a few words would do. This voluntary suggestion at once proved him to be a good ambassador, because he can act on his own, if need be; a good friend, because he would spare me the trouble of preparing a long speech; a good brother, because he wanted the young couple to get away for their honeymoon as soon as possible. (laughter).

In Chinese fashion let me first felicitate the happy parents of the happy couple. I have known Mr. Lo Cheung Shui for more years than I like to count, and Dr. M. H. Chaun for nearly thirty years. I have a great regard for both these two friends, but for Mr. Lo Cheung Shui I have the added feeling of respectful awe; for in my days at Queen's College he was my master, or, to me more exact, he was the master of my masters, being supervisor of the lower classes. If ever any son can truthfully be called "a chip of the old block," the bridegroom can most justly be described as the very old block itself. (Hear, hear!) Not only does he resemble his father in looks and build, in temperament and taste, he deliberately chose his profession as a dentist, having graduated with honours at an American University. He is now a partner in his father's firm, and I am sure his father will be the first to acknowledge it—more than pulls his weight in the business. His well-known good nature is a guarantee that he will make a good husband. He certainly has made himself a very likeable prospective son-in-law. I have it on no less an authority than mine good ambassador Mr. M. K. Lo that young Chaun has always been ready to make up a four at bridge to enable old man Lo to beguile a couple of hours of a quiet evening; and somehow the young fellow invariably loses! (laughter). This is the sort of young man that will get on in the world, I say. And so has said old man Lo, I warrant you. I will spare the charming bride the ordeal of listening to a long citation of her qualities. It will suffice to say that she is a quiet and sensible girl, and this is saying much in these days of flighty flappers. She plays a good game of tennis, managing the ball marvelously well with her left hand. I have no doubt that she will manage her husband, and play the game of life, with equal success. (applause).

Ladies and gentlemen, I pledge to you the good health and happiness of Dr. and Mrs. K. W. Chaun. The bridegroom made a graceful little speech in return saying: "Dr. Kotewall, Ladies and Gentlemen, I am overwhelmed with happiness on this occasion, and overwhelmed also by the compliments that Dr. Kotewall has heaped upon me and which are quite undeserved. I wish to thank you all on behalf of my wife, and for myself, for your presence here to-day and also for your kind gifts. To your health, ladies and gentlemen."

Having received the bride and groom for a short while with their guests, Dr. and Mrs. Chaun left for their honeymoon. The bride leaving in an embroidered dress of satin in the latest Chinese mode.

The Powers should take stock of the situation, not concealing what is surprising and unwelcome, but laying effective plans against the potential menace, whatever sacrifice of old enmities and new grievances among each other may be involved.

When He Unbent.

Sir Horace Ivory, the senior judge of the King's Bench almost invariably wears a stern expression in count. But once he unbent.

He was trying the late T. W. H. Crosland on a charge of libel. The late Lord Birkenhead, then F. E. Smith, was for the Crown, and was subjecting Crosland to a stiff cross-examination.

"I wish, Mr. Crosland," said F.E., "you wouldn't keep staring at the jury. The jury can look after themselves."

"Yes, I know," answered Crosland in his richest Yorkshire. "But I want 'em to look after me."

"Really, Mr. Smith," said the judge, shaking with laughter, "you did ask for it, you know!"

Thriving on Interruption.

Mr. Brendan Bracken has also every reason to be satisfied at his own work in connection with this Bill. His criticisms of its financial provisions have been keen and effective. People say that he has, in his appearance and manner, an immense advantage. His eagerness, his vigour, and his shock of red hair compelled attention when he first entered the House. But he quickly fortified these advantages by developing a faculty for astute questioning, with a pungent and pointed simplicity of style in speaking that was well exemplified in a speech on the Austrian loan.

Mr. Bracken is a speaker who inspires frequent interruption—sure proof of a provocative style—and thrives upon it.

How the Bill Started.

The genesis of the London Passenger Transport Bill makes an interesting tale.

In 1929 the Underground company, together with the L.C.C., promoted independent Bills. Its object was to enable them to enter into working agreements between themselves or with other interests for the co-ordination of passenger transport services, and the establishment of a Common Fund. The accession of the Labour Government led to the Bill being refused a Third Reading; hence it became incumbent on the Labour Party to promote a co-ordination measure of their own, and it was that Bill, with many Conservative amendments, which passed its Third Reading in the Commons last month.

All this is the result of unremitting determination by a man who has not been favoured by good health; for Lord Ashfield has been a life-long sufferer from asthma.

LOOKING BACK 75 YEARS

A glance at the list of mercantile firms in Hong Kong, must cause surprise in the mind of an unprejudiced stranger, from the great proportion of Foreign names which it contains. Before the inroads of dacoits and banditti caused the adjacent provinces to fall into a state of anarchy, which of course was aggravated by the late hostilities with the 96 villages; when Hong Kong was little more than a garrison town, and a little less than an Opium station, the Government certainly did openly encourage foreigners to settle here by all possible means.—Hong Kong Daily Press, March 23, 1858.

An important question touched upon in the annual report of the Chamber of Commerce is that of the Bankruptcy Laws of Hong Kong. Archie Jackson's Death.

A pathetic feature of the unavailing fight for life of Archie Jackson, the 23-year-old Australian batsman, who died recently was his confidence that he would be able to resume that place in Test cricket to which his thoroughly sound methods, courage and elegant style entitled him.

In the course of a letter which he wrote to an Australian friend in London from a mountain resort in New South Wales, where he was endeavouring to regain his health he says: "At the moment, I feel better and stronger than ever, and am certain I'm going to turn out against the Englishmen." He wrote, "Strangely enough, just prior to this trouble I was feeling perfectly strong and healthy." Still, one never knows what is lurking around the corner.

Shy and rather sensitive through his inability to reproduce in England his real Australian form, Jackson was a charming and modest youth, popular alike with comrades and opponents.

ASSOCIATION

MR. J. RUSSELL ELECTED PRESIDENT

THIS SEASON'S COMPETITIONS
DISCUSSED

The annual general meeting of the Hong Kong Lawn Bowls Association was held at Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co.'s board room yesterday. Mr. A. O. Brawn was in the chair, and those present were: Mr. A. L. Shields (vice-president), Mr. C. J. Tachi (secretary), Mr. G.E.F. Thompson (treasurer), Mr. B. Wylie, Messrs. G. Stewart, R. Bass, A.E. Conter, U.M. Omar, J. Kempton, N. Nish, N. Hempton, F.X. Silva, F. Webster, L.A. Gutierrez, B.A. Hyder, R.P. Phillips, G.L. Buchanan, L. de Rome, N. Nair, A.E. Carry, B.W. Bradbury, H. Overy, J. Russell, W. Drummond, A. el Arculli and J. Polson.

The Chairman said:—We had one of the best seasons on record. I would add that our finances are in a satisfactory state, having a balance in hand of $740. I would like to thank all those who helped to make last season such a success, particularly would I like to thank my brother officials and Mr. Brawn who has arranged our championship and Spey Royal Cup matches, and Mr. Thompson who stepped into the breach of treasurer left by Mr. Maughan, who went on leave a month ago. Last of all I want to thank all who assisted in the working of the Association and then I must also thank Messrs. Jardine Matheson & Co. for being so good as to lend us this Board room.

The League Championship.

The League Championship was then discussed, the following teams having signified their intention of joining the first division:—Police Recreation Club, Civil Service Cricket Club, Kowloon Bowling Green Club, Kowloon Docks, Club de Recreo, Kowloon Cricket Club, Taikoo and Craigengower Cricket Club.

In the second division, there were two new entries, the Indian Recreation Club and the Police, while one of the last year's teams withdrew, the Taikoo. The following have joined:—Police, Civil Service, Kowloon Bowling Green, Kowloon Docks, Recreo, Kowloon Cricket Club, Craigengower, Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club, Indian Recreation Club.

The closing date for entries will be on April 1, while the championship will start on May 6. The entrance fee would be as usual $50.

Election of Officers.

Referring to the election of the post of President, Mr. Brawn said that he had been President and vice-president respectively of the Association on several occasions, and although some members had kindly nominated him for another year, he felt he had to decline as he needed a rest.

open championship at Chicago, will cross the Atlantic to play in the Ryder Cup match, and immediately afterwards will go to St. Andrews for the British open championship, a schedule threatening the loss of two of the greatest international prizes.

ARGENTINE CHALLENGE TO BRITAIN

An extended stay in England to compete in the leading tournaments and Championships and in a match against Britain is planned by the leading Argentine golf professionals.

Mr. Paul Casares, honorary manager of the Argentine players, said to a Press Association reporter yesterday: "The original idea was to play in the American championship, but I feel they would be well advised to spend a longer time in England. Then they will be able to play at Southport and Leeds before competing for the British Open championship at St. Andrews."

"On behalf of the Argentine Professional Golfers' Association, I wish to challenge the British P.G.A. to a match in England this year. Of course, until I know definitely what plans have been made in Buenos Ayres I cannot enter into negotiations for the match."

"It is possible that Jose Jurado and his companions will come direct to this country instead of first visiting America."

The new Argentine P.G.A., of which Jurado is president, has been formed to finance European and American tours, stated Mr. Casares. It is hoped that regular

He had approached Mr. Shields, the vice-president to be his successor, but the latter had declined owing to business reasons. Mr. Brawn then proposed Mr. Bradbury to take his place, but the latter refused saying that he had been vice-president on several occasions and did not like to be "the same old chess."

Mr. H. Nish was then proposed but he also declined. Mr. Stewart then proposed Mr. J. Russell, and on the seconding of Mr. Cullen, he was appointed.

The following officials were also elected:—
Vice-President: Mr. A.L. Shields.
Secretary: Mr. N. Hempton.
Treasurer: Mr. G.E.F. Thompson.

Spey Royal Cup.

After the closing date of entries for the Open Singles Championship had been decided—May 14—the draw for the Spey Royal Cup was held. This year eleven teams had entered, the Police, Kowloon Docks, Kowloon Bowling Green, Indian R.C., Taikoo, Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club, Craigengower, Recreo, Kowloon C.C., Civil Service and Hong Kong Electric.

The draw resulted as follows:—
Police, Recreo and Civil Service, byes.

I.R.C. v. Kowloon Docks.
Hong Kong Electric v. Taikoo.
Craigengower v. Yacht Club.
K.C.C. and Kowloon Bowling Green, byes.

International Shield.

With regard to this competition, Mr. Brawn said that the competition for this shield, which was presented by Mr. L. A. Gutierrez, last year's champion, must be on international lines. Every nationality must be represented by only one rink.

Mr. Brawn, however, said that as there were many Englishmen in some of the Clubs, it was very difficult to choose only one rink out of them. He therefore suggested that the shield should be competed for by at least three rinks from each nationality. Mr. Gutierrez, the donor, however, said that the reason why he wished the shield to be competed by only one rink from each nationality was that they could see the cream of bowlers in action. Furthermore, he wanted the shield to be competed by different nationalities because he wished to create friendliness among them.

A sub-committee was then formed to take charge of all the competitions, and the following were appointed:—Messrs. J. Russell, A.L. Shields, G.E.F. Thompson, Mr. F. Hempton, Mr. Gutierrez, H. Nish, W. Bradbury, and A. V. Grimmit.

trips to the United States and Britain will be made each year.

ENGLISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP

The English Close Amateur Championship is to be decided at Ganton, near Scarborough, beginning on Monday, April 24. A competitor must be an amateur as defined by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews; must be a British subject, either born in England, the Channel Islands, or the Isle of Man, or be the son of parents, one of whom was born in the districts mentioned. In addition he must not have played for Scotland, Ireland, or Wales in their international teams, nor competed in the close championships of those countries since January 1, 1925.

Intending competitors' handicaps must not exceed 3 (category 1 of the Standard Scratch Score and Handicapping Scheme) or have been such on December 31, 1932.

Entries from players who are members of golf clubs in the British Isles must be made through the secretaries of their clubs, and a qualified player entering from overseas must enter through the secretary of the recognized authority controlling golf in the country concerned. Such entry must be accompanied by a signed declaration by the secretary that the entrant is eligible in accordance with the qualifications for the championship. The executive committee have power to accept entries from persons who are British subjects, claiming through grandparents born in England and who have educational and residential qualification.

H.K.C.C. TENNIS
TOURNAMENTCapt. Cannon Wins Club
ChampionshipRIDE AND MRS. WHITHAM
IN FINAL

(By SALADIN.)

By beating R. H. Wild in the final yesterday, Capt. Cannon has gained the distinction of being the champion of the Hong Kong Cricket Club for the current year, and he is a worthy successor to S. E.

Green and F. A. Redmond two of the best title holders in this event. Producing the convincing form he has shown in the tournament, he accounted for Wild in straight sets, conceding only six games in the match. The loser's best efforts were in the second set, when hitting more accurately he crept up to 4-5 before yielding the set.

The winner employed enterprising tactics throughout, and showed good judgment in the art of attack and defence. His placements proved to be the most spectacular feature of the match, and very often he first drew his opponent out of position before administering the coup de grace to win the rally.

In the semi-final of the Mixed Doubles Handicap, Ride and Mrs.

Whitham beat Stocker and Miss R. Hancock comfortably, although the latter pair gave a good account of themselves.

RESULTS

Only three matches were decided yesterday, the results of which follow:—

Final:—Capt. Cannon beat R. H. Wild 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Handicap Doubles.

Evans and Marton beat Wood and McBride 6-4, 7-5.

Mixed Doubles.

Semi-final:—Ride and Mrs. Whitham beat Stocker and Miss R. Hancock 6-2, 6-2.

Cannon and Bryan v. Brunger and Morhans.

SPECTACULAR FINAL EXPECTED

The final of the Open Doubles Championship of the Colony, scheduled to be decided this afternoon, bids fair to produce a spectacular struggle. For the second consecutive year E. C. Fincher and L. Goldman are challenging the Runjahn cousins in the final, and as they ran the holders of five sets last year on their initial attempt at the title, their prospects for success should be brighter to-day. A great deal, however, depends upon the form the finalists produce, and the results will probably be

LADIES' TENNIS

The annual triangular contest for the Ladies' Inter-Club Challenge Shield took place on the Courts of the U.S.R.C. on Monday when the Ladies' Recreation Club (the holders) succeeded in retaining the trophy for another year. Each Club was represented by two couples who each played sets of eleven games with both pairs of the other Clubs, making the total possible score for a Club eighty-eight games. The results were: Ladies' Recreation Club—Mrs. Tottenham and Mrs. Lewis Bryan, 29; Mrs. Stafford Smith and Miss Thomas, 29; total 58. United Services Recreation Club—Mrs. Lochner and Miss Pullun, 38; Mrs. Lambert and Mrs. Parkes, 18; total 44. Peak Club—Mrs. Grimbale and Miss R. Hancock, 25; Miss H. Hancock and Miss Potter, 5; total 30.

This shield has now been contested for on seventeen occasions, and has been won by the L.R.C. twelve times, the U.S.R.C. three times, and the Peak Club twice.

uncertain until the later stages of the match.

Goldman and Fincher possess good understanding, and their respective abilities are suited to each other's play, so that they combine effectively. On form the former is a fine volleyer and a deadly smash, and with Fincher, steady as a rock, working out openings for him to kill, the Runjahns will have to be on top form to be able to retain their title for another year.

The distribution of prizes takes place at the conclusion of the match.

What KALZANA does

Complaints

that show that Kalzana is needed—right away

① In Women

Discomfort and pain can usually be combated in a short time by Kalzana tablets, for Kalzana regulates the system and relieves the pain.

As a doctor wrote in the "South African Medical Record": "Whenever there is disfunction in the body, lack of calcium is probably a contributing factor." By taking Kalzana the Calcium balance is restored and the functions are regulated again. Because Kalzana is a calcium food and does not contain any harmful ingredients it must do good and cannot possibly be harmful.

② In Skin
Troubles

Lack of calcium leads to Rashes, Eczema, Nettle-rash, and other forms of Skin Trouble. Here Kalzana has been proven of the greatest value.

In the case of Nettle-rash a few large doses (6-8 tablets each time) will conquer the rash very quickly indeed and stop the itching. In the case of Eczema, it will take a little longer, for the calcium must have time to strengthen the walls of the blood-vessels and the cells of the skin.

Gradually the Eczema will disappear and the itching will stop.

③ When one is over forty

Easily induced fatigue, dizziness, difficult breathing, blurred vision, low resistance against colds and infections—all these symptoms are warnings which should be heeded immediately, especially if one is over forty. Calcium deficiency at that age becomes a distinct menace and Kalzana should be taken in order to avoid unpleasant reminders of

The discovery of Kalzana has confirmed the theory that many complaints were only due to a lack of this element in our system. Years ago physicians had expected to find that lack of calcium would be at the bottom of many complaints, but experiments to conquer these complaints with calcium salts were a failure. We now know that this happened because ordinary calcium combinations leave the body again without doing any good. But all these difficulties have been overcome with Kalzana. In Kalzana the calcium is combined with another salt in such a way that it is—easily absorbed, easily retained,

and it is pleasant to take

Kalzana strengthens all the body cells, improves the condition of the blood, and builds healthy teeth. It also soothes the nerves—irritability is often a sign that the nerve threads are weakening for lack of calcium.

Do not wait till YOU or your CHILD suffer

In expectant mothers ④

Calcium is needed in great quantities to build up bones and body cells of the expected child. Many complaints of the mother are due to the growing child's excessive demands for calcium. General weakness, loss of hair and tooth-decay may be conquered with Kalzana, the calcium food.

The General Practitioner,
a well-known Medical Journal, writes:

"Kalzana acts efficiently in protecting the expectant and nursing mother against a dangerous loss of calcium."

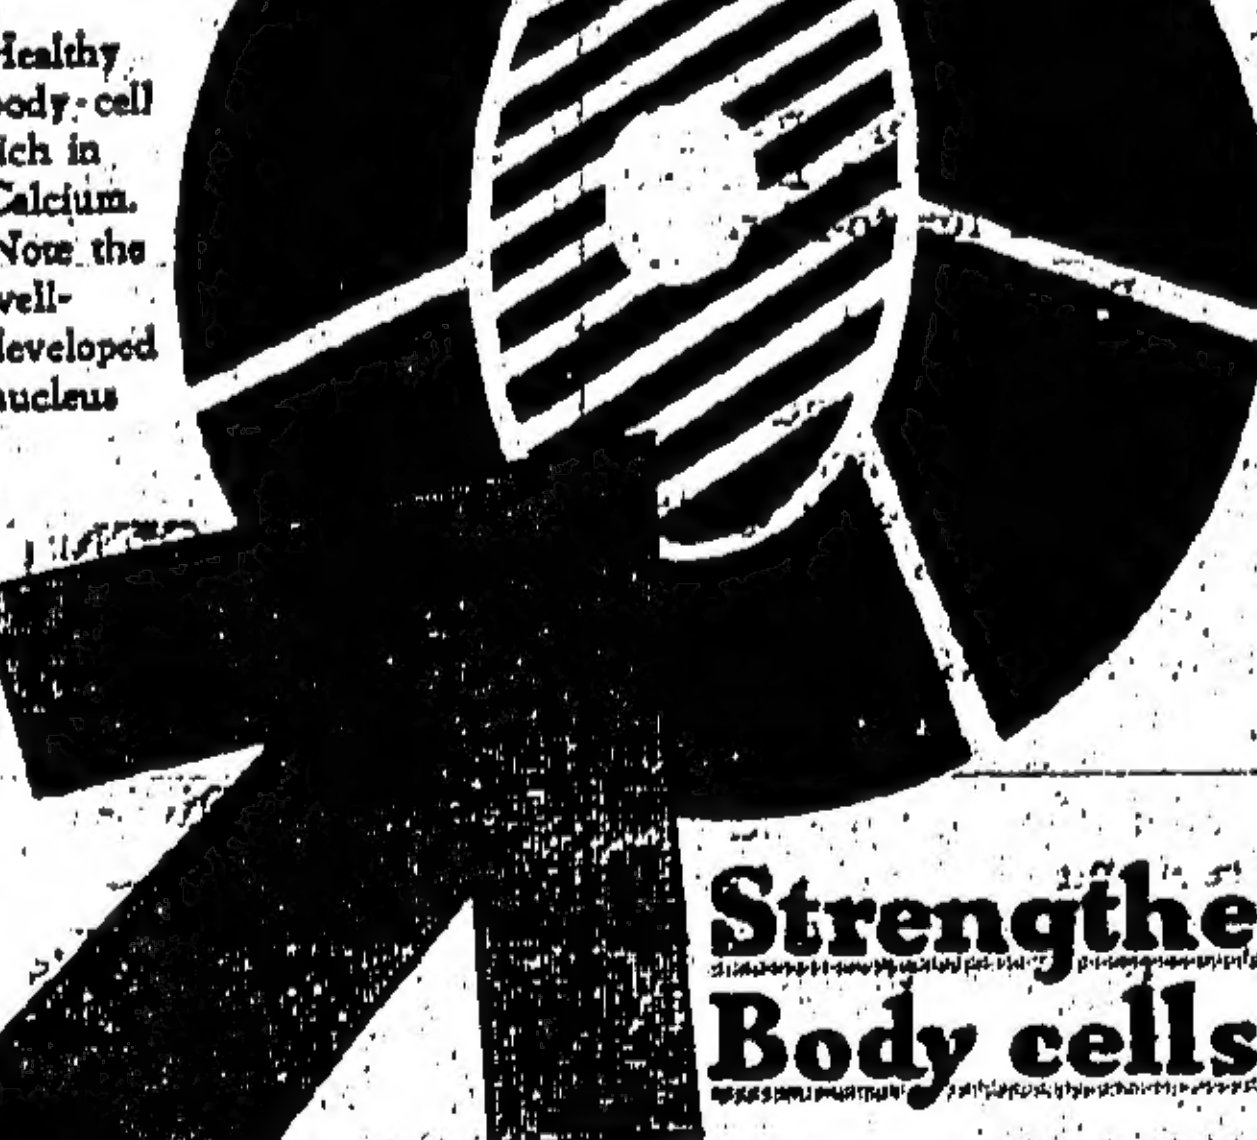

Why lose your health? Guard your youth and freshness by taking Kalzana. Then you will also be sure that baby will be strong and sturdy.

For Weak Teeth ⑤

Many people suffer continuously from their teeth. Of course this should not be, and it need not be, if one takes Kalzana tablets regularly. For Kalzana arrests tooth-decay and makes your teeth strong and hard, and able to withstand the attacks of microbes and acids.

Remember that your teeth are living parts of your body and that the food they require—calcium—is liberally infused into your body by Kalzana.

Start a course of Kalzana and save yourself much pain and trouble.

Strengthens Body cells

The opinion of well-known medical papers about KALZANA:

"The Pharmaceutical Journal of New Zealand," Jan. 1930.

"Kalzana has been used with very good results in cases of calcium deficiency, such as bone diseases, dental caries, rickets, weakness in growing children, during pregnancy and lactation—in fact, in all cases where a diet with an excessive calcium content is necessary."

Rickets too are a typical sign of a lack of calcium. Kalzana will set all that right, and very soon your child will be happy and healthy again.

"The British Journal of Tuberculosis," April 1929:

"We have employed Kalzana with much advantage in the management of delicate children. It seems to be of considerable service in cases of rickets and other morbid conditions of bone and also as a preventive of dental caries. For pregnant women Kalzana is often beneficial."

BY MOTOR

The average visitor on going to a place for the first time wishes to see as much of it as he can. Drive round the New Territories and round the Island of Hongkong and it will be, we are sure, a revelation of scenery, unsurpassed anywhere in the world. The New Territories are also particularly interesting, for their glimpse of the normal life of China, peaceful, pleasant and monotonous. There will be found old villages and groups of cottages, tilling the soil, by methods used for thousands of years.

BY TRAM

For those who put a new experience before comfort, there can be no better way of seeing the city of Victoria, in all its phases, than to take a tram Westward to Kennedy Town or Eastward to Shaukiwan. You will not travel too quickly, and you will be able to take in all that you see. What may strike you is that you are viewing a new, civilized, not China of the old villages and narrow streets of its own towns; certainly not the Western way of life, which is here seen in the Central districts and on the Peak. It is Chinese—entirely Chinese, but a new China, distinct and individual.

At night time pay a visit to West Point. There you see the Arabian Nights come to life. As to Chinese theatres, there are plenty of them if you care for the experience, but if you want to return for a couple of hours back to your native land, there are modern picture houses, showing the latest releases from Hollywood and Elstree. We generally reckon to be a little bit ahead of London and New York in seeing latest productions.

ON FOOT

For the adventurous and energetic, there is nothing better than hiking where you will, up the steep hills and down the quaint lanes and byways of the town.

One suggestion for hikers and mountaineers at this time of the year is to go to the very top of the Peak, which means half an hour's brisk walk from the Upper Peak Tram Station. Make the journey in the late afternoon. You will see not only the town and the Colony lying at your feet, but, away towards the sunset, a view of waters and islands without rival in strange beauty except perhaps on the West Coast of Scotland. You will see, better than anywhere else in real life, the landscape which Leonardo da Vinci made the setting for Mona Lisa.

FOOTBALL

Possibly there are devotees of association football on board the s.s. Resolute. To them it will be no news that the Chinese have taken very keenly to the game. In Hongkong there is just as much enthusiasm as in England over a league match. The crowds are not quite so large, but they know how to make a noise. There are a number of matches on Saturday and if anyone wants to know how young China plays and watches football they will find a visit to Caroline Hill an education.

CRICKET

Wherever Englishmen go they lay down a cricket ground. The Hongkong Cricket Club ground is the local Lords and the Kowloon Cricket Club ground is the Oval. The British community by no means has it all their own way on the cricket field, and the champions are the Indian Recreation Club. They have a delightful ground, reminiscent of a typical village cricket field in England. We are sure any cricketer who cares to visit any of these clubs, will be assured of a cordial welcome.

in perpetuity by the Treaty of Canton early in 1841. This was confirmed by the Treaty of Nanking on August 29th, 1842.

The Island is about 10 miles long and from 2½ to 5 miles wide. It is little more than an irregular range of hills rising steeply from the sea to nearly two thousand feet at the highest point, and presents an impressive skyline, balanced by the equally rugged mainland on the other side of the Harbour.

MACAO!

WHERE THE OLD DAYS LINGER

A visit to Macao should be included in any tour of South China. The reason is clear for in Macao one finds a new atmosphere, "the spell of Southern Europe," of the Mediterranean.

The peculiar charm of Macao lies in its quiet old-world atmosphere: here wide avenues lined with banyans, there narrow cobbled streets; old forts bristle with canons and demitiverins, and church clocks "sprinkle the quarters o'er the market place."

There are spots in Macao where it is easy to picture the past, and learn of early European relations with China, for, situated at the mouth of the Canton river, it was for centuries the usual resort of European merchants trading in China.

Its natural beauty, too, and the quaint buildings are another attraction, while its equable climate, the comparatively moderate cost of living, with its security and comfort combine to make Macao an ideal place for a quiet holiday.

The Past.

The first of the Western maritime powers to open direct relations with China was Portugal. In 1498 Vasco da Gama doubled the Cape of Good Hope and led the way to India. In 1511 Alfonso d'Albuquerque captured Malacca; in 1516 Rafael Perestrelo voyaged to China; and in 1517 Fernao Perez de Andrade came to St. John's Island. In 1521 the Portuguese were expelled from this island, and went to Liang-Po, where in 1542 trade with Japan was inaugurated. In 1545 this trading station was destroyed, and eventually the Portuguese set up the Colony of Macao, which is considered to have been founded in 1587.

HONG KONG

The Island of Hong Kong lies off the Kwangtung Province, South China, and is situated 22° 22' North lat. and 113° 55' East long., about twenty miles to the east of the estuary of the Pearl River, upon which, about thirty miles inland, stands the city of Canton.

After more than two centuries of commercial relations between Canton and European merchants, Hong Kong was ceded to Great Britain (Continued on Previous Column.)

Shops and Buildings

GLOUCESTER BUILDING

Hongkong prides itself on Gloucester Building. We all feel that here we have something on the top line. It is not, of course, a tower of Babel like Woolworth Building—you all know Mr. A. J. Balfour's epigram on that subject—but for design, for massiveness, with a shimmering whiteness, with a graceful tower flooded every evening, it is something to regard with wonder and delight. Inside there are not shops in the cool arcades filled with the treasures of the East and the wonders of the West! Everything is there from Mandarin coats and Tientsin carpets to spectacles and surgical instruments. There are picture shops and blackwood furniture shops. There are swift lifts to carry you up through the offices of lawyers, brokers, bankers and merchants to as good a restaurant and hotel as you will find anywhere in the world. You will be interested to see how we take our morning coffee and our whiskeys and cocktails. There is a cocktail bar in Tudor style, a white restaurant and a big roof garden—with sweeping views over the harbour and the wooded slopes of the Peak.

Gloucester Building stands on reclaimed ground. Not so very many years ago launches and junks came alongside a pier at this very spot.

If we want more building land in Hongkong we make it. We level hills and throw them into the sea. Any engineers among you will be interested to see this process is still going on in various parts of the Colony.

When you are wearied of sight-seeing and wish to watch the life of the Colony at your ease, there is no better place to make your headquarters than Gloucester Building.

GRAY'S YELLOW LANTERN SHOPS

Tourists in Hongkong will no doubt come across these shops as there are four of them, one in the Hongkong Hotel, one in Gloucester Building, one in Alexandra Building and one in Peninsula Hotel.

For hand embroidered lingerie, dinner table cloths, Point D'Venice and Exquisite Linens, pyjamas and hand embroidered linens there is no better place than one of the "Grays" shops. The shops are well-known in Shanghai and Manila and enjoy the confidence of the Hongkong public.

LAZARUS

What is more prosaic than a pair of spectacles, and what is more distasteful than to break or lose your last pair? And, quite honestly, if you leave your spectacles behind in a tram or a hired car you may get them back again, but the chances are something like drawing a runner in the Irish Sweepstakes.

In Gloucester Building you will find qualified opticians in the firm of Lazarus. Everyone here knows their courteous and efficient manager, Mr. L. A. Tobias. He will tell you how long your job will take and he will have it ready to the minute. This is not one of our romantic shops, but none is more useful or better managed.

WAI KEE

Jewellery has an attraction all its own and whether there is a trade depression or not, there is always a demand for jewellery. In Hongkong, the firm of Wai Kee is known as a reputable and dependable store where you are sure to get a square deal.

Wai Kee's carry a large stock—diamonds, jades, silverware and gold articles. Some very fine example of ivory carvings can also be seen here. The stock is too varied for a detailed description but a visit will show an excellent collection of Oriental jewellery.

PIONEER SILK STORE

An attractive silk store in China Building is The Pioneer Silk Store where prices are very moderate. Here are silks that delight all who visit the Colony. Silk Mandarin coats, Cantonese shawls, ladies silk pyjamas, underwear sets, Indian real brocade and bridge coats are available. This big silk store is the shopping centre for local shoppers but the courtesy of the staff places you under no obligation when you visit their store.

KOHINOOR SILK STORE

This silk store is also in China Building and is the last store before you come to Queen's Theatre. They carry many articles of silk and are well worth a visit if only for the variety they can put before you. They have a large range of Oriental silks which every visitor should make it a point to see and they stock a number of novelties. Ready made dresses, handkerchiefs and ties and silk for men's suits are all available here and dresses can be made ready in twelve hours.

MAP OF KOWLOON.

SHOPS IN KOWLOON

Many tourists in the past have made a great mistake in not visiting the shops in Kowloon which carry a large variety of choice things of special interest to travellers.

It is a real disappointment to Kowloon merchants for visitors not to even call on them, after they have gone to not a little trouble and expense to prepare special displays of goods and to advertise same for their benefit.

We would call the attention of readers especially to the shops in Kowloon whose advertisements appear on this page, as well as others in the vicinity of these shops, which carry a full line of Chinese art curios, silks, embroideries and other choice things.

THE JADE TREE, LIMITED.

The most outstanding art and curio centre in the Colony, and probably in the entire Orient,—is the Jade Temple, which has recently been established in their own unique buildings, at Nos. 19 to 21 Hankow Road.

FOOK WENG & COMPANY.

Just across the street from the Jade Tree, at No. 20 Hankow Road, and also in the Peninsula Hotel Arcade, one can find in a shop displaying the sign of the "Golden Pagoda," a large selection of the finest embroideries and ivory ware, cloisonne, amber, and curios of various kinds.

CHIN CHIAN AND SONS

For the ladies who delight in the dainty little handkerchiefs, Messrs. Chin Chian & Sons' announcement on this page,—that they have in stock "more than 500 designs," ranging in prices from 50 cents to $80.00 per dozen,—will surely be an inducement to call.

KOWLOON & THE NEW TERRITORIES

The original Chinese city lies some three miles to the East of the steamer and ferry wharves, but the name Kowloon now applies to the big city extending from Kowloon Peninsula towards the hills beyond. The area is mainly residential but the shops in Nathan Road and the arcade of the Peninsula Hotel are well worth a visit.

In 1861, about four square miles of the Kowloon Peninsula were ceded to Great Britain as a dependency of Hong Kong, and in 1899 a further area of approximately 280 square miles of mainland and 90 square miles of islands was leased from the Chinese Government for 99 years.

Since the larger area was taken over, rapid development has ensued and there is now an excellent motor road of about 60 miles enabling travellers with but a few hours to spare to penetrate into the heart of the British controlled territory and to enjoy the truly magnificent scenery. The country is well regulated and there is not the slightest danger of molestation. The Chinese inhabitants may be seen at their best in their native surroundings tending their miniature farms and practising their native crafts under the jurisdiction and protection of the Government of Hong Kong.

"ARCADIA."

On the opposite side of Peking Road from Chin Chian & Sons, at No. 32, will be found the Arcadia Jewellery Shop, which carries a large stock of Jade and Diamonds and other precious stones, as well as high class watches and clocks.

TAK LUNG.

One of the most interesting and valuable pieces of old Chinese art is to be found in the small and unpretentious shop of Mr. Tak Lung, the smiling old Chinese gentleman, who is an authority on things Chinese.

COLOMBO JEWELLERY STORES

The genial proprietor of the Colombo Jewellery Stores, at No. 13 Hankow Road, is always willing to show his choice selection of Zir-cens and other oriental precious stones.

TUNG HING TRADING CO.

A visit to the shop of the Tung Hing Trading Company, at No. 45 Nathan Road, will reveal one of the finest selections of embroideries at most reasonable prices, including Silk Shawls, Bridget Coats, Tea Sets, etc.

WINDSOR BROTHERS.

The firm of Windsor Brothers, dealers in fine jewellery and precious stones from Ceylon, at No. 56 Nathan Road, has on display many things which will attract the attention of visitors.

PEKING ART RUG COMPANY

The world-famous Peking carpets and rugs which may be inspected at No. 32 Nathan Road, only one minute from the Peninsula Hotel, are something which no tourist can afford to miss.

HONG KONG, MARCH 23, 1933.

THIS LITTLE WORLD

The globe-trotter, or tourist, is a distinct species of the human tribe. He or she may be identified by a romantic refusal to be blasé about the strangeness of the world, by a weakness for gaudy silks and foreign curios, and an inherent belief that the oceans were especially made for rich and elderly persons to cross on luxury liners. In Kowloon we have long grown used to these bespectacled denizens from another world—a world of waffles and Four Square Gossellers—and we even regard their visits with hospitable pleasure. For the tourist, however gauche and gaudy he may look in his cloth, can and bizarre suitings, is usually keen enough to spend his money wherever he goes. He is a constant source of income to the silk shops, the hotels, the curio dealers and the rickshaw boys. Hong Kong has never advertised itself as an Eastern Brighton, and we should not care much about trippers even if we could lure them so far from Home, but the round-the-world tourist is welcome because he is quite a valuable factor in the Colony's retail trade.

From the point of view of, say, the poet, the tourist is a menace. He is held responsible for the vulgarisation of lands that were once mysterious and alluring. To please his expensive tastes glittering, ten-storeyed hotels have taken the place of romantic, palm-fringed beaches; unsophisticated Polynesians have commercialised their native songs and dances, and the merchants of the East have deserted their treasures for machine-made goods. The once inaccessible, little-known world of the East has lost its beauty and its charm for ever, and the tourist is largely to blame.

Let us see his point of view. Sitting in the parlour of his comfortable flat in Oldhamia he has dreamed of the magic day when he shall have saved enough money to visit those far-off lands which beckon, like the sirens of Ulysses, to commonplace men as well as poets. When the day arrives and he boards his ship, a little awed perhaps by its magnificence, he must realise that his joy will be all too fleeting. The days slip by, like multi-coloured dreams, and too soon he sees again the prosaic chimneys of his home-town. A little sentimentally, perhaps, he wants some souvenir to remind him of his Sinbad days, and he is only too glad to buy anything, however strange that is a symbol of the East—a little fat god, a shawl of startling design, a lacquer tray or a piece of ivory. When he gets home these adorn his mantelpiece, and he points to them with pride when visitors call. Their possession gives him a secret thrill; looking at them he can feel at one with Marco Polo and those other brave souls who ventured forth to answer the call of the wanderlust.

HOCKEY MATCH

An easy victory was gained by the European Y.M.C.A. 1st XI over the Club de Recreio at the King's Park ground on Tuesday, when a 4-3 goal record was made for the Europeans. Goals were scored by G. Fowler (3), G. Lamont (1) and G. Fowler (1). The passing on G. Fowler was good. The "Y" goal was as follows:—Shields, Bell, Wilson, Murphy, McLellan, Bates, G. Fowler, Brown, G. Lamont, S. Fowler and White.

ST. JOHN'S AMBULANCE BRIGADE

secure a site for a Brigade Headquarters and speed up the department which is holding up the question of the Cheung Chai Hospital site.

In England Sir William will be our Ambassador to Brigade Headquarters, London, where he will be able to clear up with the authorities at Home many points which have remained obscure. Educate their opinions and ideas that although Hong Kong is but a speck upon the map it contains a band of loyal workers, who spare neither time, energy, brains nor money for humanity's sake and in upholding and furthering the aims and objects of our organisation.

SIR WILLIAM SHENTON'S REPLY

Commissioner Morris, Ladies and Gentlemen.—You have to-night conferred on me a great privilege, you have invited me to this sumptuous feast thereby enabling me to celebrate with you the passing of a great landmark in my life—His Majesty King George has seen fit to confer on me the honour of Knighthood, and I regard it as particularly fortunate that I am permitted to enjoy this privilege amongst those with whom I have worked the best years of my life.

Now a few words in reference to our Order and its ancient history. No organisation really appeals to us on the basis of its history with tradition. China's veneration for what has stood the test of ages in proverbial and consequently our Order is one which, irrespective of our objects, commands itself to us.

The Order was established by Godfrey de Bouillon in the 11th century after he had driven the infidels out of Jerusalem. He founded the Priory at Jerusalem which consisted of a hospital for the pilgrims who resorted there and he put Brother Gerard in charge. This is particularly interesting because one of our strong supporters here is Professor Gerrard of the Hong Kong University—a possible descendant of this famous Brother and First Prior of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

The Order continued its good work for many years with varying vicissitudes—at Acre, Cyprus, Rhodes and Malta, and was ultimately dispersed by Napoleon.

In the middle of the 16th century the Order became established in England and spread its wealth and power from the great central Priory in Clerkenwell, where its present Headquarters are to-day.

Her Majesty Queen Victoria revived the Order and granted it a new Charter since when its growth has been phenomenal and now extends throughout the British Empire.

The principal object of the Order is, as you know, the St. John Ambulance Association, the Brigade is one of the objects of the Association.

Out here we see more of the Brigade than we do of the Association but they both exist side by side.

Our object is not only a laudable one but one of the greatest in life—what finer object can one have than the relief of suffering and rendering assistance to the poor and distressed. The League of Nations has given us international recognition in times of war, with the consent of the belligerent parties, we are given special immunity.

An International Body.

We are an international body with a common object, we work irrespective of race, creed and religion. In a Colony such as Hong Kong, we must be really successful here unless it is international.

Our work to be really interesting, must be varied, and I imagine you would have to go a long way to find a bigger variety of work than you get in Hong Kong. In addition to our usual routine Brigade duties we attend all emergencies, we con-

A GYMNASIUM NEEDED

FOR NON-GAMES BOYS AND GIRLS

The need for a gymnasium in Kowloon, open to both sexes, was stressed by a member of the European Y.M.C.A. during an interview with a Daily Press representative yesterday. It was pointed out that the Committee had repeatedly been urged to consider building a gymnasium at the rear of its premises, but had replied that until its debt of $130,000 was paid off no further expense could be considered. It is unlikely, therefore, that the Y.M.C.A. will support any movement to inaugurate a gymnasium in the Colony.

Our informant said that there were hundreds of young men and girls in Kowloon who were only too keen to take up "gym," but had nowhere they could practice it. He thought that if some enterprising person were to hire a large hall, equip it, form a club and provide an instructor, he would immediately get as many members as he wanted. It was possible that if this were done the Y.M.C.A. would agree to some form of affiliation with such an organisation.

The trouble in Kowloon was that there was little scope for recreation and those who did not belong to the various sports clubs could get no exercise whatsoever. He added that he would be glad to receive enquiries from anyone who was interested in the formation of a gymnasium in Kowloon and suggested that a meeting should be held at an early date.

Mainland News in Brief

Minor injuries were received by a Chinese who fell on alighting from a moving bus in Nathan Road.

After falling from the verandah of her house at 11, Pitt Street, a Chinese woman was removed to the Kowloon Hospital suffering from body injuries. The woman was getting in clothing when she lost her balance.

A linesman of the China Light and Power Co. was taken to the Kowloon Hospital on Tuesday suffering from injuries received by coming in contact with a high tension wire. He subsequently died in hospital.

A eight-year old Chinese girl is now lying in the Kowloon Hospital as a result of an error made by her mother, who gave her corrosive acid in mistake for castor oil.

duct a far reaching vaccination campaign and we are now doing hospital and general welfare work throughout the New Territories. Such a great voluntary effort has I am certain the strong support of our Government.

We are all international in our composition, we are all working together with a common object—the relief of suffering and distress, which is the fundamental principle of our Order. With the intention of further stimulating our work and knitting together more closely our co-operative effort we hope soon to have our own Headquarters. We have recently applied to the Government for a site and we have already been promised a substantial amount towards our building. I am sure all those who interest themselves in our progress will wish us well in our new undertaking and assist us in any way that lies within their power. It will be a good ground for all nationalities working in unison in furtherance of the great work we have voluntarily and conscientiously undertaken.

Commissioner Morris, Ladies and Gentlemen, I thank you for your great kindness and unbounded hospitality.

The Jade Tree is displaying in the Temple today a most comprehensive line of new sports necklaces. These are to be on sale for the week at just one half the marked prices. Nothing adds the touch of distinction to an otherwise plain costume like these beautiful creations. They are well worth a trip to Kowloon to view.

The Temple is open at night. The main Jade Tree studio is closed after five o'clock, but if anything is really wanted it can be sold through the Temple.

LUXURY LINER DUE HERE THIS MORNING

A REMARKABLE SHIP AND HER PASSENGERS

The S.S. Resolute, the luxurious cruising steamer of the Hamburg-American Line, is expected in Hong Kong this morning. The ship is always a welcome sight as she arrives in port with her shipload of prominent Americans and Europeans.

From the time the passengers sailed from New York until they return on May 18th, they will cover more than 38,000 miles on land and sea during the 132 days they are on route. They will visit thirty countries, each different, and each offering strange and fascinating contrasts.

The Cruise Itinerary.

The Resolute's 1933 Cruise itinerary includes: Madeira, Gibraltar and Spain, the French Riviera, Monaco, Italy, Greece, the Holy Land, Egypt, French Somaliland (East Africa), India, Ceylon, Prince of Wales Island, Malaya, Siam, Straits Settlements, Java, Bali, Sulu, the Philippines, South China, Formosa, North China, Korea, Japan, Hawaiian Islands, California, Panama and Cuba. An elaborate programme of shore excursions is available to the passengers at the different ports visited, to assure their seeing places of prime tourist interest and remote spots of romantic and historic allure, which they would not ordinarily see.

The Ship.

The "Resolute", a 30,000 ton, triple screw oil-burner, is 620 feet long and 72 feet wide. She was especially constructed for cruising service and her spaciousness and comfort provide ideal facilities for a long voyage in the tropics.

Architecturally, and from the standpoint of decoration and furnishings, the public rooms are masterpieces, especially the beautiful Winter Garden Ballroom, which is the center of the ship's social life. There dances, concerts, bridge tournaments, amateur theatricals, masquerade balls, and other social functions are held; these are arranged at the discretion of the hostess. The Ladies' Parlor and Smoking Room provide quiet and pleasant rendezvous at all times for the travellers. Here they may rest in ease and comfort.

The gymnasium and swimming pool, as well as the specially designed sport deck, where deck golf, shuffleboard, boxing bouts, etc. can be enjoyed at the passengers' leisure, are much in demand by persons desiring recreation and exercise.

In the main dining room, where the ship's orchestra plays at luncheon and dinner from a canopied balcony, the choicest food is served. In addition to the delightful dishes of American and European concoction, menus including native dishes of countries visited along the route are provided.

The Captain of the "Resolute."

The commander of the S.S. "Resolute"—Captain Fritz Kruse—is well-known in ports along the route as the "Cruising Captain" of the Hamburg-American Line's fleet and it seems that he was appropriately named; for his name, as generally used, sounds like "cruiser". And too, Captain Kruse is a real "Cruising Captain". This is his thirteenth trip round the world, several of them having been made on the S.S. "Resolute".

Captain Fritz Kruse was born in Stettin, Germany, on June 4, 1874. He went to sea at the age of 16 and for many years sailed the seas to North and South America, the East Indies and Australia. He joined the Hamburg-American Line on December 6, 1899 as fourth officer on the "Graf Waldersee", and in March, 1901, he received his Master's papers. After that, until he took over the "Resolute" during the latter part of 1923, Captain Kruse was in command of Hamburg-American Line ships in the Company's different services. His popularity among travellers is remarkable. He is capable as a navigator, experienced as a cruise and travel expert, efficient as Master of his ship and crew and genial as a host.

Social Life and Entertainment.
A carefully planned series of social functions and entertainments is carried out during the voyage between ports. There is dancing in the Winter Garden and on deck, to the music of a clever modern dance orchestra; concerts are given in the Winter Garden; amateur theatricals, bridge tournaments, aquatic sports and athletic contests, in addition to the usual deck games.

An experienced world traveller and lecturer is attached to the Cruise Staff of the Resolute, and frequent lectures are given on the countries and cities visited.

There have been one or two incidents during the voyage, the most serious of which was when the ship lost a propeller when nearing Bombay, and had to go into dry dock on reaching that port, and during the ten days spent by the passengers on trips into the interior of India the damage was repaired. There was no delay caused by the accident. She was able to proceed under the power of the other screws, and a spare propeller was fitted at Bombay.

Collided with Whale.

The day before her arrival at Madera—Friday the thirteenth of January—the passengers were treated to the sight of a huge whale which came close enough to the ship to cause the navigator to alter his course, and in the words of the ship's news bulletin in describing the incident next day "even so, we gave the monster a gentle shove at its tail, causing it to turn turtle and float past our starboard side before it could right itself to submerge." Captain Kruse said afterwards that he had never before had to concede the right of the way to a whale.

An outbreak of smallpox in Bombay at the time of the vessel's arrival there made it necessary for the passengers to be vaccinated; some "conscientious objectors" refused, but the order was not enforced.

At Djibouti the Resolute received royal visitors in the person of Emperor of Abyssinia, and his ten years old son Prince Makonnen. They were accompanied by M. Bessac, Governor of French Somaliland. A medal of the Order of the Coronation was bestowed by the Emperor upon Captain Kruse and Mr. W. Querner, the cruise director, and lesser honours were bestowed on other of the ship's officers.

"A Cheerful Pessimist."

There is a cheerful pessimist on board the S.S. Resolute in the person of Mr. John J. Bradley, a retired New York business man, who is making his first trip round the world.

Looking round him and surveying the situation in the Far East, the crisis in Germany, the unrest in France, and the financial frenzy in America, Mr. Bradley can see no cause whatever for optimism. "It is all very well to talk about optimism," he said, "but..."

"In England you have a more stable constitution than we have," he said. "When you have a change of government only the heads go; the Civil List is not changed. That is the result of many years of steady government. Your diplomatic service goes on in the same way as well. But in America when we have a change ambassadors change, the departmental heads change, and generally members of the party assuming power take over in preference to those of the other party."

When asked how he thought it would all end he replied emphatically, "War, absolutely! World war! You have called all the makings of it, in the Far East, in the Balkans, in Germany, and in the Near East. International financial difficulties have always been the cause of wars. It won't be enough to kill off a couple of Princes this time—there aren't so many of them left now, but the whole of Europe is waiting for the spark to be put to it again."

CLASSIFYING THE PONIES

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS."]

I think the suggestion made in your yesterday morning's issue that Australian ponies should be divided into classes "A" "B" and "C" is an excellent one and if given effect to will not only improve racing but encourage the small owner. Ponies should not, moreover, be allowed to languish in a class obviously unsuited to them and winners should be promoted. For example Lucy Glitters should now pass into "A" class and a pony transferred from that class into "B." Let the honours go round as much as possible.—Yours faithfully,

SMALL OWNER.

CHEMICALS FROM COAL*The Romance Of A
Disinfectant*BILLIONS OF GERMS AND THEIR ANTIDOTE

Sheffield.—Six men in overalls spend their lives in a little brick building six miles from here, nourishing enough germs to wipe out the world.

I stood in this room to-day with death staring from hundreds of little phials, writes a "Daily Express" correspondent. Each phial contained billions of germs—typhoid, anthrax, diphtheria, scarlet fever and others.

15,000 Billions a week. Their numbers are incalculable. Consider that more than 1,000,000 germs may sport themselves comfortably on a pinhead. Then consider that the men who casually walk among them deal with one gullion of liquid death in a week.

The nearest obtainable estimate shows that 15,000,000,000,000 (fifteen thousand billions) of typhoid germs are bred and studied in six days. The studying is more difficult than the breeding.

A single germ multiplies itself by 15,000,000, in twelve hours. And these six men—all expert research chemists—feed them on bullock's heart and extract of beef so that they may thrive.

When the old germs are becoming weak new strains are introduced. These are taken from the blood of typhoid patients.

A thin wall of glass and a piece of cotton-wool are all that separate hordes of fighting-fit germs from the world.

And all this is done because the great iron and coal firm of Newton, Chambers produce a disinfectant the ingredients of which are captured from their coal.

The deadly germs are incubated, fed, fostered, and fattened that they may have full vigour, to be tested with the disinfectant. One drop will kill 5,000,000,000.

And the only protection in this chamber of horrors is the disinfectant seal.

It attacks germs in a well-ordered battle formation. A drop is put among the battalions of typhoid. The disinfectant works on the Brownian movement. It is chemically formulated so that it attacks the germ by releasing a series of minute particles that bombard the body of the germ in shrapnel-like fashion.

This is solemnly true. You may ask Mr. H. E. G. West, the enthusiastic general manager of the chemicals department.

The building with such terrifying power symbolises the thoroughness and courage which have gone into the building of the "town," of which it is only a tiny unit—the headquarters of Newton, Chambers.

Swallowed up a Forest. Its colliery companies, iron works, and distillation plants stretch themselves spaciouly over fourteen miles of South Yorkshire.

It came into being this way. A Mr. Newton and a Mr. Chambers began a small iron-smelting works in Thorncliffe Woods 140 years ago.

Their descendants still control a business that has swallowed up the forest and—

Employs 10,000 men. Owns five collieries and the majority of houses in the surrounding half-dozen villages. Has the largest blast furnace in England.

Controls iron works that turn out anything from a stove to an iron bridge or a gas plant. Pays £1,500,000 in wages each year.

This firm have thrown a network of selling organisations throughout the world. They have eighty foreign branches and agencies.

They are spending more now on export development than at any time in their history. They intend to spend ten times more than they were doing five years ago on the development of the chemical markets.
